States gasp to increase oxygen stock as hospitals face heat amid Covid-19 surge

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

WITH India's single-day Covid-19 tally set to hit the one-lakh mark, availability of oxygen for medical use has become the latest worry for the Centre and states, particularly where the cases are surging.

Struggling to meet the rising demand from hospitals treating Covid-19 patients, some states are resorting to measures like capping the use of oxygen for industrial purposes and restricting inter-state supply. Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh and Punjab are among the states facing oxygen shortage while almost all states have seen a big increase in demand.

The Centre, on its part, has put the onus on the states to ensure the availability of oxygen and has directed them to remove the restrictions on its supply to other states.

A Union Health Ministry directive in this regard came on Friday in the wake of the Maharashtra government ordering restrictions on use of oxygen so that patients do not suffer. The Uddhav Thackeray government recently put a cap on use of oxygen for industrial purpose under the Epidemic Act.

It directed all producing units in the state to supply 80% of their oxygen for medical use and remaining 20% for industrial use in Maharashtra only.

The state, where the coronavirus cases have crossed the one million mark, hit the panic mode after a few deaths were attributed to poor oxygen supply in hospitals, even though authorities refused to confirm the same. Private hospitals in Navi Mumbai, Nasik and Dhule have reportedly pressed the alarm button and reduced the flow of the oxygen to Covid-19 patients so that they do not run out of supply.

Seven people died at a Jogeshari hospital and the families of the deceased alleged non-availability of oxygen.

Judges victims of unfair criticism: Bobde, Ramana

Judges' freedom of speech is curtailed by the same laws which prevent people from saying whatever they feel like, against judiciary

Chief Justice S A Bobde

Judges themselves restrain from speaking in their own defence and they are now being construed as a soft target for criticism

Two senior-most SC judges flag social media slander and 'juicy gossips' against judiciary

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

JUDGES have become soft targets of slanderous social media posts and "juicy gossip" in the garb of criticism, Supreme Court judge N V Ramana said on Saturday.

"As judges are self-restrained from speaking out in their own defence, they are now being construed as soft targets for criticism," said Justice Ramana, who is next in line to become the Chief Justice of India in April 2021 after incumbent S A Bobde retires.

Concurring with Justice Ramana, CJI Bobde said the freedom of speech of judges "is curtailed by the same laws which prevent people from saying whatever they feel like, adverse to the independence of the judiciary".

They were speaking at the launch of a book authored by Justice R Banumathi, former Supreme Court judge.

Justice Bobde said the importance of an independent judiciary is not limited to independence from executive powers, but from other pressures and prejudices as well. "Judicial independence is not for the personal benefit of judges, but for the nature of power vested with the judiciary," he noted.

Justice Ramana said there seems to be a misconception that judges lead a luxurious life. "From my own experience, I can state that the life of a judge is not a bed of roses," he said, adding the reality is quite different from what people comprehend.

He highlighted the self-imposed restrictions judges follow in their social life to remain independent. "I believe judgeship in the present day requires sacrifices unparalleled in any other profession, and the same is required to be made as the country's future is dependent on strong independent judges," he remarked.

According police officials, the names were mentioned in a statement narrated by one of the accused and a member of Pinjra Tod, a women's collective.

However, the police clarified that a person is not arraigned as an accused only on the basis of a disclosure statement. "It is only on the existence of sufficient corroborative evidence that further legal action is taken. The matter is currently sub-judice," said the police in a statement.

Yechury tweeted, "They (Centre) are scared of peaceful protests & are misusing state power to target the Opposition."

Writers bat for mandatory regional language in NEP

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

WITH Karnataka set to implement the National Education Policy-2020 (NEP), some prominent writers as well as the Kannada Sahitya Parishat have advocated that the Central Government mandatorily implement the regional language as the medium of instruction up to Class 5, and not as an option. They have also written to Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa requesting him to take up the issue with the Prime Minister.

In a letter to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday, noted writer and novelist S L Bhyrappa, Jnanpith awardee Chandrashekara Kambara and Sahitya Parishat president Manu Baligar have said that the state language should be the primary medium of education in the NEP. For this, an amendment to Article 21 (A) of the Constitution is necessary. "We request you to amend the Statute and implement this at the earliest," their letter says.

Baligar said that they had written letter to the PM in this regard in August. Speaking to TNSE, Baligar pointed out that the NEP allows for the regional language/mother tongue as an option for medium of instruction. "If this choice is given, people will not opt for it. They will, instead, prefer English medium," he argued, and added that it should be made mandatory and not optional.

In 1981, the V K Gokak Committee had recommended Kannada as the medium of education in schools across Karnataka. Later, in 1994, the Karnataka Government issued the Language Policy which stressed on Kannada as the medium of instruction in all primary schools. P5

TREE-MENDOUS EFFORTS

Chitradurga farmer and his friends quietly go about planting trees in their city

G SUBHASH CHANDRA @Chitradurga

THE story of Siddaraju Jogi, a farmer in Chitradurga city, brings to life what the French writer Jean Giono probably wished for when he wrote The Man Who Planted Trees in 1953: that the story would instil the love for planting trees in people through the story of one man whose persistence turned a barren landscape at the foothills of the Alps into a beautiful forest.

The efforts of Siddaraju and his friends in greening their city stand as a reminder that systemic change requires not one hero, but the collective efforts of different groups of people.

Over a decade, Siddaraju Jogi, and later, his friends, and then Chitradurga city's residents, have quietly gone about the city, planting trees and watching over them to reduce dust and pollution in their city.

Like many acts of selflessness, this one too, had a trigger. The year 2009 was difficult for Siddaraju's young daughter. She had breathing difficulties, which the doctor said was due to poor air quality. That made him think about other children in the city whose health suffered because of the air they breathed.

So, he began planting saplings in his neighbourhood and caring for them. He would get saplings which the Forest Department distributes free of cost for the Vanamahotsava (first week of July).

But gradually, his friends, who learned about what he was doing, began joining him and in 2016 they made it official and called themselves Target 10,000. They've planted about 20,700 trees all over the city, of which 13,400 are not just surviving, but thriving.

One of the biggest problems with mass sapling-planting drives is that it ends there, with no plans of subsequent care. Siddaraju, however, decided not to let Vanamahotsava (festival of forests) turn into "Vona mahotsava", which in Kannada, roughly means 'festival of withered plants'.

"Before we begin planting saplings, we talk to the residents of the neighbourhood and convince them to care for the plants. Because of this, most of the trees survive," Siddaraju says.

These efforts have had a domino effect. "Initially we found it unique, so we too planted saplings. We have since motivated others in our neighbourhood to take it up. Now our whole area is clean and green," says Rekha Santhosh Kumar, a resident of Vidyanagar.

Krishnamurthy, resident of Nehru Nagar, echoes similar thoughts. "When they requested us, we reluctantly agreed. But now, the trees give shade and we are happy. Now, we too ask other people to plant trees."

Their collective efforts have ensured that the saplings planted years ago, are now 10-foot tall, healthy trees, that provide shade, fruit to birds, probably recharge groundwater and impact the ecology in many positive ways that most humans will never be aware of.

Initially, Siddaraju, a farmer who also owns a photocopy shop, planted saplings that the Forest Department provided free. But in 2017, he met Deputy Conservator of Forests K Chandrashekar Nayak who advised him on species more suited to an urban environment.

Siddaraju and his friends then began procuring Honge, Neem, Peepal, Jamun, Jackfruit and Gulmohur with their own money.

"This has made the city clean and green. The department also provided knowledge on types of trees that survive in this climate. We chose species that provide shade, fruit for birds and animals, and release more oxygen. People too are happy about obtaining knowledge about trees, and learning about environment protection," says Nayak.

Another person whom Siddaraju is immensely thankful to is S P Radhika, Principal of Government Arts and Science College, who helps them water the saplings and trees.

"I planted trees to preserve biodiversity, reduce pollution in the city with the hope that children have a good environment to live in," Siddaraju says.

On the day that you read this, Siddaraju and his friends are watering and pruning trees in a locality which they chose on Friday and Saturday during their weekly rounds to chek on the trees' health.

Old school catechu, perfect for monsoon

RAGHOTTAM KOPPAR @Gadag

MOST families cherish their traditional secret recipes. Likewise, the Havanurs of Gadag have allowed their time-honoured catechu to send a 'blast of fresh air' among the people of North Karnataka and beyond, literally.

This humble family has aced the traditional art of preparing catechu over generations, whose popularity has crossed the state's borders into Andhra and Tamil Nadu as well.

Catechu is the extract of the acacia tree, which is used as an astringent, food additive, tannin and dye, and is a popular ingredient while putting paan together. It is widely used in North Karnataka as an ayurvedic medicine, and is prescribed for women to treat cough and cold during pregnancy, for children with wheezing who take it in hot milk, and for old people with respiratory illnesses who consume it with betel leaves.

The Havanurs' recipe fits well as a mouth freshener, digestive and throat cleanser, blended harmoniously with dashes of clove, cardamom, cinnamon, menthol, jeshtamadhu and sugar. The acacia bark is sourced from the surrounding plantations, and the final product makes its way to ayurvedic stores and traditional vaidya clinics, apart from paan shops. It is customary in rural North Karnataka to also offer catechu in the tamboolam during functions.

With the onset of monsoon, the demand for the product only grows. This time though, Covid-19 played a bigger role in driving demand, since many view it as an effective antidote to prevent throat and breathing-related issues. One of the most important factors behind the popularity of this family's catechu is its pricing. At Rs 6 for a box containing 100gm, it's a big draw among patrons from all walks of life, who can't seem to have enough. Packets priced Rs 5 are sold to pan shops, while ayurvedic stores buy them in the form of round cakes which can be stored for more than three months.

In the Havanur family, Kabiradas (68) taught his son and daughter-in-law to make catechu the old-fashioned way, at their home.

"Every year, during the rainy season, we get many orders. Our quality and affordable pricing are attractive. Apart from Karnataka, some agents from other states also place orders. But the recent lockdown did lead to some losses, but we are slowly recovering. Catechu is the best remedy for throat infection, and now its demand has increased due to the fear of the pandemic," he says.

Parvatibai, one of the family members involved in making catechu, adds, "We have been selling our product from home. While there are catechu-makers in Bengaluru, Maharashtra, and elsewhere, many still come to us because of our superior quality at reasonable prices. We have never compromised on either. We avoid machines, and make the product by hand and dry the cakes, after which they are packed to be sold."

One of the biggest questions in the minds of the Havanur family members is whether their cherished role will be carried forward by the coming generations. But that's something that comfortably seems to find its answer, perhaps in the affirmative, in every coming monsoon.

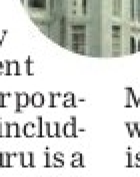
EX-CORPORATOR'S CLAIM

'BBMP can tap properties worth ₹50K cr for taxes'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike can strengthen its finances if properties worth ₹50,000 crore are registered and tapped for revenue, former chairman of the BBMP Standing Committee for Public Works Mohan Kumar said on Saturday.

"If all the BBMP properties in Bengaluru are tapped, registered and issued a unique property identification number, the Palike will be financially strong, self-sufficient and on par with corporations in other cities, including Mumbai. Bengaluru is a high tax-earning city, but the BBMP is struggling for finances," Kumar said at the virtual interactive meeting Namma Nayakaru of Resident Welfare Associations, corporators and Mayors, organised by NGO Janaagraha. To strengthen BBMP's finances, revenue and estates committees should be strengthened, he said.



Former Mayor M Goutham Kumar backed Mohan Kumar's views, adding that BBMP officials are not interested in earning more revenues for the palike. "The Mumbai corporation has declared its assets, but the BBMP has not done it till now, because it does not have proper records. We started the exercise of identifying properties and clearing encroachments, but it needs to be taken forward by officials," he said.

The former elected representatives unanimously demanded that ward committees, and not engineers, should be given more powers to decide what is best for a ward. They demanded that in the Bengaluru Metropolitan Act 2020, which the state government is constituting, standing committees, should be given more authority, otherwise, they should be scrapped.

Shivaraju, head of the taxation standing committee, said that last year, the BBMP collected ₹2,400 crore in taxes, and this year ₹3,000-3,500 crore. However, the corporation's annual budget is over ₹10,000 crore. Though the State announces that it will fund 70 per cent of Palike's requirements, the actual amount released is not more than 30 per cent.

Member of Parliament P C Mohan on Saturday wrote to Gaurav Gupta asking him to address the road condition in Central Bengaluru. He said residents of Chickpet are badly hit because roads have been damaged by rain and the BWSSB has also dug them up. He drew his attention to Sultanpet, Old Taragupet, Ballepet, Police Rd and Akkipet.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

Newly-appointed administrator to Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike Gaurav Gupta on Saturday went on city rounds, especially areas that were flooded earlier this week. During his visit, he not only pulled up BBMP engineers for encroachments on a stormwater drain by realtor Embassy Group near Hebbal Lake, but also instructed the company to restore it.

He was inspecting Manyata Tech Park, Hebbal Valley, Rachenahalli and surrounding areas that saw heavy flooding. At Manyata Tech Park, he instructed officials to pay special attention to open drains and get the silt cleared. He pointed out that some drains are concretised, some unattended and others half-done.

Gupta directed Embassy Group to remove the slabs they had put on open drains. Not only the company has to remove the slabs, but also fix the damage. Otherwise, it has to pay heavy penalties, he warned.

He directed officials to ensure a smooth flow of water in drains and lakes as some water bodies like Rachenahalli Lake are small and cannot handle excess inflows. Drains that connect lakes should be cleared and maintained well, he said.

At the Jawaharlal Nehru Centre for Advanced Scientific Research, residents from the campus and surrounding areas complained that the campus gets flooded after rain, and also water flows into areas around it.

The residents pointed out overflowing Amruthahalli and Rachenahalli lakes flood their houses. Engineers suggested diversion of channels to solve the problem, but Gupta said that the issue will be analysed in detail before taking any final decision.

Taking stock of flooding near the Hennur railway bridge, he spoke to the divisional railway manager, SWR, and asked railway officials to construct small bridges under the tracks to help commuters.

No garbage segregation in 35 wards

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE garbage scenario in Bengaluru is bad and this was proved again at the solid waste management meeting held at the BBMP head office, where it was pointed out that 35 wards have zero garbage segregation and no fine has been collected in 61 wards.

BBMP Special Commissioner (solid waste management), D Randeep, who chaired the meeting, told The New Indian Express that the engineers and health inspectors have been asked why this is so.

Ward details have been put out in the public domain and a show cause notice is also being slapped on them for failing in their duty.

Most of the wards where there is zero garbage segregation fall under East zone (18), followed by seven in South, three each in Mahadevapura, and West zones, and RR Nagar (ward number 16). In case of zero fine levied, the inactive count list includes Byatarayanapura, Chickpet, Jayanagar, Kengeri, Mahadevapura, Mahalakshmi Layout, Malleswaram and Yelahanka wards.

The BBMP has now started the exercise of monthly assessment of each ward and ranking them. This exercise started from July after the city scored poorly in the latest Swachch Sarvekshan ranking where it slipped from 194th rank to 214.

Randeep said that engineers, contractors and health inspectors have been given three months time to show positive results.

At the meeting it was found that GPS was not installed on autos and compactors used to collect garbage. It was also pointed out that in 35 wards garbage was not being segregated and was being sent directly to landfills and not even to wet waste segregation centres.

Tourism dept to involve locals to popularise least-visited sites

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

MYSURU is not just about the Palace and Chamundi Hills, and Bengaluru is not all about Cubbon Park and Lalbagh. Turning Covid times into advantage, the State Tourism Department is trying to involve local people to popularise the unexplored places in their backyards.

The department is appealing to the people to send photographs and videos of unexplored places in their towns and villages, which it will popularise.

Tourism contributed 15 per cent to the State's gross domestic product in 2019-20 fiscal. The sector employs 25 lakh people directly or indirectly. But since March, due to the pandemic lockdown, and later post lockdown, the sector has been facing uncertainty. After the lockdown was lifted, many tourist places have opened up with safety precaution measures in place.

"It might require at least six months for inter-state tourists and more than that for international tourists to visit Karnataka. Therefore, we need to focus and promote intra-state tourism for sustainability. There are hundreds of popular destinations in Karnataka and thousands of destinations which are not explored by outsiders,'' Tourism Minister C T Ravi said.

He said the department is appealing to people to record 30 seconds to one minute video of potential tourist destination places in their village or town. People can send the videos to the tourism department officials (can check the tourism department website) or post those videos or photos on Twitter and Facebook tagging the Minister and department handle. "We will popularise it further," he said.

Referring to his constituency (Chikkamagaluru), he said the number of tourists has increased. "For instance, earlier Mullayanagiri Hill was known for its temple. But over a period of time, it became a favourite destination for trekkers. Similarly, Yana in Uttara Kannada district, one of the most unexplored places, has become popular now. Such beautiful places across the State have the potential to attract tourists within Karnataka,'' he said.

Accommodation and accessibility will be worked out and the list will be uploaded on their website.

The department plans to constitute District Tourism Task Force Committees headed by DCs. Other members of the task force will include stakeholders like homestay owners, tourist guides, hoteliers and others. They will be involved in improving local places and promoting local food products and artisans.

Reacting to this, in a series of tweets, former CM Kumaraswamy said it is not correct to link the 2014 visit to Sri Lanka for discussing the party's political strategy to the present situation. JDS MLAs, MLCs and he had visited Colombo in 2014. "We did not hide it and I had spoken to the media before and after visiting Colombo... we had even sent the clippings of our meeting to the media," Kumaraswamy tweeted.

"Since the cost of Goa resorts and Colombo was almost the same, we decided to opt for the latter. This was my first and last visit to Colombo," he stated.

Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar, who is in Chikkaballapura, asked if being a minority was a tag for protection. Zameer had earlier alleged he was being targeted for being a minority. Sudhakar said the BJP government will take action against all involved in the drugs case despite their financial status, community or religion.

Responding to Congress leader Siddaramaiah's statement that the BJP government is misusing drug probe, he questioned why the previous government hadn't taken action. He said the government will take action no matter how powerful the people are and said that the CM and the Home Minister have taken important steps in this regard.

Jumping to his party MLA's defence, senior Congress leader H K Patil said, "Zameer has said if allegations against him are proven, he will write his property to the State government."

BBMP OUTLYING ZONES START WITNESSING SPIKE IN CASES

Increased testing, interstate travellers testing positive are the reason: Zonal chiefs

IFFATH FATHIMA @ Bengaluru

WHILE a major chunk of Covid-19 cases were being reported from BBMP East, West and South zones, which many officials attributed to high density of population, there has been a sudden turnaround since August, where more cases are coming from outlying zones like Yelahanka, Dasarahalli, Bommanhalli and Rajarajeshwari Nagar.

According to the state war room statistics on a seven-day average, cases per ward data, the south zone starting in July first week recorded the highest of 7.5 percentage. From mid-August, however, zones on the fringes of Bengaluru climbed up the list, and on September 2, cases in Dasarahalli were 30.5, Bommanhalli 21.9, Yelahanka 17.9, Mahadevpura 17.2 and RR Nagar 15.05. East and West had 12.01 each, while South zone 7.05.

Data from the last week of August showed that RR Nagar had the highest number of 569 cases, followed by Shettihalli in Dasarahllli with 557 and Uttarhalli in Bommanhalli with 542.

Zonal officers of these outlying zones attributed the rise to increased testing cases, from industrial areas and inter-state travellers.

Dr Ashok, Yelahanka Zonal Joint Commissioner (JC), said, "Till July-end, we were conducting 600 tests per day. But now, it has been increased to 2,000 tests which is one of the reasons for increase in cases. We have also seen many workers from industrial units testing positive. However, we traced the cases and avoided further spread."

K Narsimha, Dasarahalli Zonal JC, said, "At the beginning of the pandemic, Dasarahalli was the only zone that had zero cases. Even during Unlock 1.0, we didn't report any cases. But later, cases rose. Increased testing is another factor for the rise."

NC Jagadeesh, RR Nagar Zonal JC, said, "We started with targeted testing, where we picked ILI, SARI and comorbid patients, which led to more cases being reported. Though we have a small population of 11 lakhs, we had higher numbers because of targeted testing. We have been recording 300 cases per day."

Munish Moudgil, Incharge of State War room and South Zone, said that outlying areas are recording more number of cases as they were less affected in June and July.

"The first wave is completing its run in some parts and starting in others. Areas from where cases are being reported have undergone a big change. After the first wave of infection, it has come down," Moudgil said.

Some officials said that lesser number of cases in East, West and South zones may be due to people not coming forward for testing. But an East zone official said that these zones have already peaked.

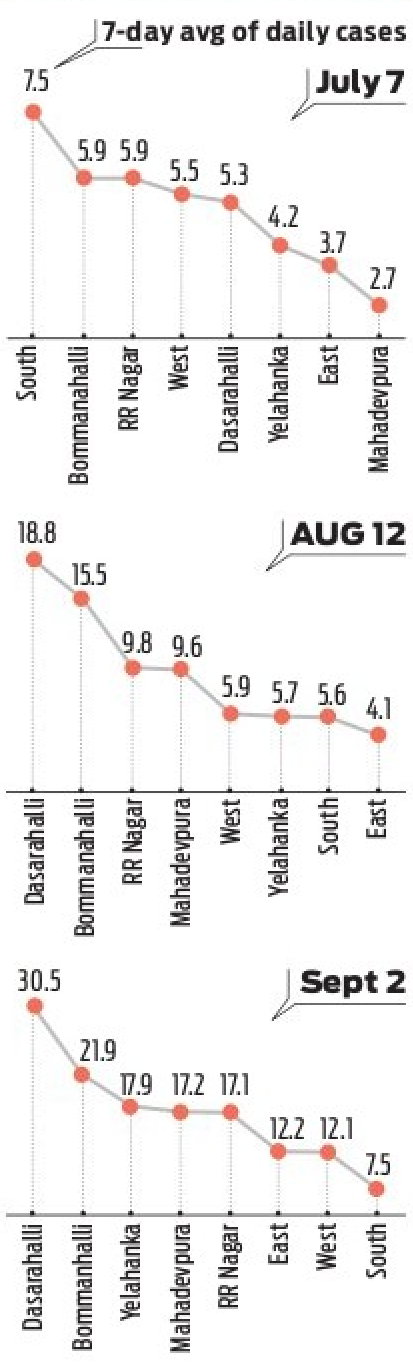
HOW WARDS FARED



SUNDAY INTERVIEW

High numbers, but state is doing fine, says Sudhakar

IFFATH FATHIMA @ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA has been reporting 9,000-plus Covid-19 cases almost every day over the last few days. However, Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar, who was in his constituency Chikkaballapur, said that the state's goal right now is to keep the mortality rate below 1 per cent and to ensure the recovery rate rises over 76 per cent at present. Here are the excerpts from the interview.

Covid cases have been increasing drastically in the state. What is the reason for the surge? Is it because of high number of testing or lack of contact tracing?

In this kind of a pandemic, the first goal is to reduce the mortality rate. The second is to decrease the number of cases and contain the virus spread. There should be a strong citizen-government partnership to control the virus. Right now, we have just three measures — washing hands, wearing masks and social distancing. If citizens follow them, we can reduce the number of cases. A sense of discipline is needed among citizens. We have seen that in other cities and countries where they follow all measures, the number of cases has reduced. Karnataka, on an average is conducting over 75,000 tests daily. A centralised system for allocation of beds and better treatment modules coupled with awareness of early testing has improved our situation.

What is the government planning to do for stronger enforcement?

We have to coexist with the virus. The government has the responsibility to save both lives and livelihoods. As per the Central government instructions, we are gradually easing norms, except in containment zones. Social distancing and masks are compulsory on streets and crowded places. We are taking strict action against violators.

Has the government put in place new strategies to curb Covid spread?

Karnataka has always been following the '5T' strategy: Trace, Track, Test, Treat and Technology. This has yielded good results. The number of active cases dipped below 1 lakh mark after 12,545 patients were discharged on Friday. With more than 3.3 lakh people out of hospital so far, the state's recovery rate stands at a healthy 76.06%. Our aim is to bring the mortality rate below 1%. As of now, the state's and Bengaluru's mortality rates are at 1.60% and 1.44%, which is less than the national average of 1.66 per cent. As on Friday, we have conducted over 36 lakh tests. We now have 129 Covid testing labs. We will soon reach the target of one lakh tests per day. We have 13,227 beds available in Bengaluru, of which 8,189 are occupied and remaining 5,038, or 38 per cent, are vacant. All parameters indicate that the state is doing very well in managing and mitigating the pandemic.

Q&A
DR K SUDHAKAR

Bengaluru seems to have seen its first case of reinfection. You have asked for a clinical study. What does the preliminary report say?

The study is being conducted by the state experts' committee, and the findings will be submitted soon. We are comparing this with similar cases across the globe. However, there is nothing to worry as we have seen just one reinfection amongst 3 lakh cases.

Experts say Karnataka is showing signs of a second wave...

I don't want to speculate. Our goal now is only to keep the mortality rate low and we are taking all steps. Initially, during the lockdown, the state managed very well. However, post-lockdown, the virus started to spread. Cases are not in containment zones, but are moving from one area to another, including rural parts. However, we have a good recovery rate and have the infrastructure. Since the oxygen supply has reduced, we have ordered it from the neighbouring states.

According to studies, 70 per cent of people are susceptible to Covid in the country. What is the likely rate for Karnataka? Has any study been done?

Over 80 per cent of cases in the state are asymptomatic. Around 0.77 per cent of active cases are in ICUs. There is no need to panic. We just need to be careful, follow precautions and move on with our lives.

What are the results of clinical trials of vaccines done in Mysuru and Belgavi? What has the government decided?

Attempts to find vaccines are at different stages. I hope we will develop one soon. Once the clinical trials are done, the government will ensure vaccines for all.

ZP plans health check-up camps in 1,130 villages

SUNIL PATIL @Belagavi

WHILE there is no respite yet from Covid, the phobia over the pandemic has turned into a bane for those with other health problems who are struggling to find medical help in time.

Taking this into cognisance, the Zilla Panchayat has decided to organise health check-up camps at primary health centres in 1,130 villages in 506 Gram Panchayat limits. The camps will provide consultation and treatment to the patients.

It stems from the fact that the health and family welfare department, which is overburdened with the Covid-19 cases, is finding it difficult to cater to those having prolonged illnesses and other ailments.

Those having complaints of blood pressure, diabetes, fever and other issues will be attended to at the camps and required medicines will be prescribed. Since the number of Covid-19 patients is on the increase, doctors both in government and private hospitals are finding it is tough to treat those suffering from other diseases. However, these patients seek medical help only if there is a glaring variation in their sugar and BP levels.

Those aged above 60 years, pregnant women, lactating mothers and patients who need regular medication can have medical check-up at the camps.

The ASHA health workers and Gram Panchayat staff are being trained by expert doctors for this task. The ASHA workers will first go door-to-door and later conduct tests on the specified days.

Darshan H V, CEO, Belagavi Zilla Panchayat, said, "We have decided to conduct health check-up at GP level for the benefit of those suffering from diabetes, cardiac and renal-related problems. This will be extended to village level in the coming days and RAT will be conducted."

Bengaluru records 3,500 positive cases in a day, highest till date

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

BENGALURU Urban recorded the highest 3,553 Covid-19 cases positive cases on Friday. This is the third day in a row that the city has seen over 3,000 cases. Across the state, there were 9,140 cases, taking the total to 4,49,551.

The number of fatalities were to 94, taking the toll to 7,161 in the state. Even active cases, which had crossed one lakh, were reduced to 97,815 cases because of a high number of discharges. A total of 9,557 walked out of hospitals with the total discharges coming to 3,44,556.

After Bengaluru Urban, Mysuru recorded 637 cases, followed by Dakshina Kannada with 401 cases, Ballari 366 and Tumakuru 304.

Though Bengaluru Urban has been recording a high number of deaths, the district-wise fatality rate in the past seven days showed that other districts had a higher number. Koppal recorded 3.35, Dharwad 3.3 per cent, Chamarajanagar 3 per cent, Vijaypura 2.7 per cent and Uttara Kannada 2.4 per cent. The fatality rate of Bengaluru Urban is 1.3 per cent.

The high number of cases in Bengaluru Urban can also be attributed to increased testing. It is the only district that has been conducting over 25,000 tests per day.

Other districts are conducting around 2,500 tests. For instance, Dakshina Kannada had only 2,541, Kalaburagi 2,512 and Ballari 2,271.

The state's positivity rate, however, remains at 12% and has not increased despite the increasing number of cases.

KOPPAL CENTENARIAN WELL ON PATH TO TRIUMPH OVER COVID

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Koppal

AT a ripe old age of 105, Kamalamma from Kataraki village near Koppal, who contracted Covid-19 on September 5, is now well on the course of triumphing over the virus. In fact, she is one negative test short of making a complete recovery.

Till recently, the centenarian had no physical or other ailments. After testing positive, she was taken to her son's house in Koppal where she is under home isolation. It helps that her grandson, Shrinivas Hyati, is a practising BAMS doctor.

Shrinivas, who is also secretary of the Indian Red Cross Society, Koppal, said that his grandmother tested negative on September 11. "In fact, she wanted to breathe her last naturally and was reluctant to consume food. She lived on just liquids such as 'Ganji' (gruel) and water and took minimal medicines," he said.

He said that his grandmother continues to be under home isolation and has to get tested negative one more time to recover fully.

Even though she has tested negative the second time, she will be kept under home isolation for another 14 days, said a doctor of the designated Covid-19 hospital in Koppal.

4 Covid-positive students write supplementary papers

Bengaluru: Four Covid-positive PUC II students from Bengaluru North, South, Tumkuru and Davangere were among the 73,366 who appeared for their Economics and Physics supplementary examinations on Saturday. This is the second highest number of positive students who sat for examinations after 10 positives wrote the English paper. The positive students were allotted special rooms in Covid Care Centres in their districts, where a medical staff and a DDPI-appointed education personnel wearing PPE kits were the invigilators. Education Department officials told TNSE that the students were brought to the exam centres by ambulances. A doctor wrapped the answer sheets and sent them back, as per the protocols of the Health Department. The PUC II supplementary examinations started on September 7 and will end on September 19. ENS

Pharmacists at risk as Covid patients throng stores

KARTHIK K K @Mysuru

PHARMACISTS and the personnel of neighbourhood medical stores, who provide medicines amidst the prescription surge, are facing the risk of contracting the virus as they are seeing many infected persons coming to buy medicines.

Over 70% of the Covid infected in the district have opted for home isolation. Of them, many patients and their primary contacts are defying the quarantine norms and are making walk-ins to the medical shops to buy immunity boosters and other essential medicines.

This trend has made pharmacists and the employees of drug stores apprehensive as they are very vulnerable to getting infected. "A person came to our store to buy immunity boosters and medicine for coughing. When we asked him for a doctor's prescription, he said that he had received a call from the health department saying he had tested positive and suggested he be in home isolation. Since he had no one to help him get medicines, he came to our store," said a medical store owner at Kuvempunagar.

Though pharmacists and medical store owners are providing Covid kits at doorsteps, many who are unaware of the facility are going to medical stores or sending their primary contacts, putting the lives of the pharmacists at risk.

More than 10 medical shops were sealed and fumigated after several positive patients visited their stores. Meanwhile, pharmacists are taking utmost care of their employees, providing them the needed protective gear.

Kaushik Devaraju, president of Karnataka Registered Pharmacists Association, said, "Over a period of one month, at least three pharmacists have succumbed to Covid in the region. Pharmacists are aware of the safety measures and are wearing all the safety gear. We are conducting weekly webinars on the safety measures for them."

ED PROBING MONEY TRAIL IN SANDALWOOD DRUG CASE

It will give agency insight into any international transaction: Officials

BALA CHAUHAN @bengaluru

THE Directorate of Enforcement (ED) is examining the financial transactions in the recent drug bust cases done by the city police to verify the money laundering angle. Contrary to some reports, the ED has so far not issued notices to Sandalwood actors Ragini Dwivedi and Sanjjanaa Galrani or any of the accused in the drug cases, informed sources told The New Sunday Express.

Ragini and Sanjjana were arrested this week under the Narcotic Drugs & Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act by the Central Crime Branch (CCB), which had registered a suo motu case at Cottonpet police station on September 4 against 12 accused. The two actors have been remanded in police custody.

"There is a huge aspect of financial gain behind the drug trafficking network. This cannot be small money and there may be multiple players. Apart from the Cottonpet drugs case, this week the City police had seized over one tonne of cannabis (ganja) worth over Rs 6 crore from a warehouse in Kalaburagi. Someone has financed the sourcing of the narcotic drug and stands to gain heavily from it. The ED is looking at the multiple FIRs registered by the police to find out the financial transactions and the money trail in the contraband network," the officer said.

Mode of transfer

"The financial trail will also give the agency an insight into any international money transaction and whether hawala was a mode of transfer of money and payment," he added.

A team of ED officials visited the CCB office on September 10 and had interacted with the investigating officers in the Cottonpet drugs case in which CCB has named 12 accused under provisions of the NDPS Act.

5 Kalaburagi policemen suspended

MEANWHILE, two days after Bengaluru police unearthed ganja worth Rs 6 crore, Kalaburagi SP Simi Mariyam George suspended five police personnel attached to Kalagi Police Station on charges of dereliction of duty on Saturday. The Kalaburagi police were kept in the dark about the raids and seizures, raising questions.

In Bengaluru, film producer Prashanth Sambaragi, who had levelled allegations against a political leader and actor, appeared before CCB on Saturday and was questioned for some time. It is said that he has given some information to the police about their links. Sambaragi has been asked to depose again further inquiry.

Sriram Khanna, the father of arrested Viren Khanna, told media in Bengaluru that his son had organised parties in many places with police permission, but there was only alcohol and no drugs.

The police, who searched his house in Delhi, found some foreign currency belonging to Viren's female friend who hails from France. She had stayed at the apartment for some time. Sriram Khanna and his wife arrived in Bengaluru to meet their son and alleged that his son was being targeted by the police. "On September 4, police came to search our house without a warrant. After that, we installed CCTV cameras suspecting that they would come again and plant drugs in the house to fix him in the case. They later came with a search warrant and took Viren. Our son is not a peddler," they claimed.

HOWEVER, the recommendation was challenged in various courts.

"In 2014, a five-judge bench of the Supreme Court ruled that it is the left to the parents to choose the medium of instruction. Thus, the State Government lost its 33-year fight. The NEP also says that instruction in regional language/mother tongue is optional. But, in his recent speech, the PM has spoken about the importance of regional languages. We hope this will boost our appeal," Baligar added.

Want to own a BDA site? There is hope round the corner

I have wasted so many years, says allottee

A Aravind, who works as a sales executive, surrendered the 30x40 sq ft site allotted to him in Magadi Road in December 2018 after paying the entire sum of ₹23,25,002 for it. Aravind said, "I got the site allotted in my fourth attempt. Within six months we got to know of a garbage processing unit near our site. Also, the price was not at a subsidized rate of ₹400 sq ft like in the case of Arkavathy Layout. It was five times that. My only regret is that I wasted so many years waiting to get hold of a BDA site."

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

As many as 934 allottees and farmers given sites in Nadaprabhu Kempe Gowda Layout have surrendered them to the Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) due to various reasons. The agency now plans to issue a notification shortly to sell them to those interested.

This will bring hope to many who have made numerous attempts to buy a BDA site. They are coveted as they are cheaper than private land, for the huge resale value they have had over the years and the credibility that a government-issued document has.

A total of 9,969 sites in the Layout have been allotted in two phases of auction. The first phase was held in November 2016 and the second in December 2018. In addition, 5,950 sites were allotted to farmers whose lands were acquired for layout formation and 2,500 sites to those whose lands were acquired for the formation of other BDA layouts and infrastructure projects.

The Finance Department has returned the initial deposit amount paid by many of the allottees after they returned the sites to the BDA, a senior official said. "Since 900-plus sites is a good number, we will be calling for a notification shortly to sell them," he added.

"The inability to acquire a bank loan, unhappiness with the location of the site due to Vaastu reasons, apprehensive that the site in a low-lying area would make any construction prone to flooding, that the sites in KG Layout were not as economical as those sold in the past and the lack of infrastructure facilities are among the reasons cited by those who returned the sites," explained an official familiar with the developments.

From being sold at Rs 200 to 400 per sq ft in the past in other layouts, the cost of a square foot in KG Layout is Rs 2,500. A 50x60 sq ft costs upward of Rs 1 crore, he added.

Another top BDA official said that a good chunk of those returning the sites were farmers who were given alternative sites in exchange for the land taken from them.

Farmers not very happy

"The BDA should have given them the developed land first. Instead, political parties pushed the Authority to announce allotments for the general public first. The best of sites in good locations went to the public," he explained.

A source said that the farmers were not satisfied with the BDA compensation of Rs 80 lakh per acre and a site as incentive as private parties were willing to give them much more.

"Hence, a chunk of the farmers have returned the sites given in exchange in the hope of a better deal," the BDA official added.

Not ready for offline classes, say students

PEARL MARIA DSOUZA @Bengaluru

STUDENTS of Bengaluru organised a protest on Saturday against the State Government's decision to restart offline classes from October 1. About 100 students took turns to visit the protest site at Maurya Circle.

Students said the government's order created a lot of confusion as colleges have started calling students back. They shouted slogans and held a signature campaign on the spot.

Students wrote to Deputy Chief Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan requesting that the ministry of higher education take into account the opinions of the primary stakeholders, parents and the students before reaching a decision.

Students said that the decision to reopen colleges comes at a time when the State is witnessing a massive spike in the number of Covid-19 cases.

Students submitted the responses of over 11,000 students and parents on reopening institutes across Karnataka.

In a survey conducted by the Bangalore Student Community, out of 11,000 respondents, 57.39 % students had a low preference for offline classes and 75.33% parents were of the same opinion.

Just about 29.43% students and 14.47% parents had a moderate preference for offline classes. Only 13.18% students and 10.20% parents had a high preference for offline classes.

Earlier AIDSO district vice-president Apoorva told TNIE that putting off these offline classes would benefit students from economically weaker backgrounds.

3 youth end life fearing NEET

Madurai/Dharmapuri: Three youngsters who were preparing to write the common medical entrance test NEET have died by suicide on the eve of exam, triggering shock and outrage across the State. The deceased have been identified as Jothi Sri Durga (19) of Madurai, M Aadithya (20) of Dharmapuri, and M Mothilal (21) of Namakkal. While Durga left behind a note attributing her death to exam fear, officials are probing if the reason is the same in the case of the other two students.

JEE Mains: With 99.99%, B'luru boy gets 65th rank

PEARL MARIA DSOUZA @Bengaluru

SHUBHAN R of Bengaluru, the state topper in JEE Mains, is looking to pursue artificial intelligence at IIT Bombay.

"The field has changed the world around us in unfathomable ways, has possibilities of changing many people's lives, and perhaps is the way forward for biomedical purposes, including new drug creation," he told TNSE.

Shubhan secured 99.99 percentile during the January attempt and retained his position as the state topper in the JEE Mains, and bagging an all-India rank of 65. Son of Ravi Prasad J, who works in the medical transcription industry, and Sudha Gopalakrishnan, Shubhan decided not to attempt the mains in September. "My main goal is to prepare for the JEE Advanced and had wanted to avoid exposure crowding in the pandemic situation," Shubhan told TNSE.

A student of an integrated course at the Sri Chaitanya PU College, Vidyaranyapura, Shubhan said he was coaching classes during the lockdown, and was in touch with his teachers online.

Karnataka, which has been at the forefront of conducting multiple examinations, be it the board exams or the entrance tests for various courses, could not get into the Top 50 for JEE Mains that was held in two phases – January and September.

For some of the toppers, the lockdown came as a boon as they used the time to prepare well for the examination. They told TNSE that because of the lockdown, they were comfortable by the time the JEE Mains was held in September.

Anniprakash, a parent, said that by the time JEE was near, her son had already attempted several other entrance examinations, including CET, IIIT and COMEDK, which added to his comfort level.

Her son, Shashank P, a student of Expert PU College, Valachil, secured 99.73 percentile in the September attempt of JEE Mains.

Shashank told TNSE that the January attempt was a bit more difficult owing to the new pattern of the paper, and by September, there was enough time to work on the mistakes.

Another Student, Rakshith, who secured 99.8 percentile, agreed that the lockdown gave him enough time to prepare better for the mistakes committed in the January test.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES NOW OPEN

ENS @Bengaluru

WITH exams round the corner, the state government reopened libraries that were shut for the last five months due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Director of Public Libraries, Satish Kumar, told The New Sunday Express that a week after fumigation and with thermal screening devices in place, the libraries finally opened. "We have ensured a gap between seats for those visiting the library. We are complying with the safety protocols announced by the state government," he said.

Books once returned will not be reissued for a week and kept aside to prevent Covid from spreading through books. But the same rule cannot be applied to newspapers and magazines, as a large number of KPSC and UPSC aspirants use the space for their studies. "Readers will instead be encouraged to use online editions of magazines and newspapers," he said.

"I am still not sure if we can access all physical books. I had a difficulty in accessing the e-library for newspapers, magazines and books," said Annie M (name changed), a UPSC aspirant.

The Karnataka Digital Public Library so far has 4.6 lakh registrations.

The online library has more than one lakh titles including newspapers and journals. It has 89,654 e-books and journals in English, 4,709 in Kannada and 454 in Hindi or Sanskrit.

Glitches mar Day 1 of NLAT

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

AFTER some opposition, the National Law School of India University (NLSIU) finally conducted its entrance test – NLAT – on Saturday. There were several complaints from students about technical glitches.

A total of 23,225 of the 24,603 students, or 94%, who had registered for the UG NLAT, attempted the test which was conducted across three sections. This was more than the attendance recorded in the UG CLAT-2019, which was 90.92%. In PG NLAT, 2,846 out of 2,935 students (97%), attempted the test. In the PG CLAT 2019, the attendance was 85.23%.

A number of students have faced technical issues like being stuck on the login page or getting logged out too soon.

A candidate said that she received a message to "verify the provided information" despite having 512 kbps internet speed as recommended by NLAT. Despite switching browsers, clearing cache and restarting the laptop, nothing worked for her. "I sent them several mails but they only asked me to wait. I also mailed the NLSIU authorities through the mail provided on the website," said the student. Another student said his test was submitted within five minutes of starting. Another said his test was terminated in 12 minutes of starting. Students could get help from helplines too.

Students, who have faced technical difficulties, can login to admissions.nls.ac.in and raise a query by noon on Sunday. A technical review will be carried out and candidates will receive a response, institute officials said.

No offence committed by BSY, says HC

YEDIYURAPPA had also called upon them to vote en bloc in favour of the party candidate. "In the present case, on the basis of the allegation made in the complaint, it cannot be prima facie concluded that the petitioner has committed offence by exercising undue influence on the person/s who had gathered for an election rally in terms of Section 171C of the IPC", the judge observed.

The judge said there is no offence which can be said to have been committed by the petitioner (Yediyurappa) requiring prosecution. Justice Govindaraj noted that this does not prevent any action to be taken against the party candidate for violation of Section 123 of the Representation of the People Act.

PU paper leak: HC seeks trial court's explanation for delay

Taking serious exception to the carelessness on the part of a trial court over the delay in holding the trial for the 2016 PU question paper leak case, the Karnataka High Court has sought an explanation from the court. Dismissing a bail petition filed by Kumaraswamy, the kingpin in the case, Justice B A Patil directed the registry to issue a show cause notice to the trial court to explain why the HC's directions had not been followed. Referring to an order passed by the high court dismissing the accused's bail plea, the petitioner's counsel argued that the HC had directed the trial court to complete the trial in a year. Yet the trial had not even commenced yet, he argued.

Probe ordered against KSOU registrar for false remarks

The Karnataka HC directed the appointing authority to hold an enquiry against Dr Lingaraja Gandhi, registrar, Karnataka State Open University (KSOU), Mysuru, for making false remarks against the petitioner, Dr A Rangaswamy, chairman and professor, Department of Studies and Research in Kannada, KSOU, while forwarding his applications for the posts of Vice-Chancellor for Karnataka State Music University, Mysuru, and Gulbarga University, Kalaburagi. Justice John Michael Cunha held that the remarks made by Dr Gandhi in his letter, dated March 9 while forwarding the petitioner's applications, were unauthorised, malafide and obliquely motivated.

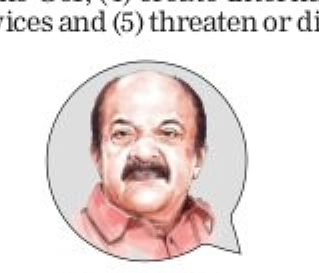
ANYONE FOR A 'PRO-NATIONAL'?

'ANTI-NATIONAL' is a much sought-after word today. It has been with us almost from the birth of the republic. Dr BR Ambedkar used it in his concluding speech in the Constituent Assembly on November 25, 1949. He said, "The castes are anti-national. In the first place because they bring about separation in social life. They are anti-national also because they generate jealousy and antipathy between caste and caste." He is very clear about what, in the Indian context, is anti-national.

Later, the word took its place in the Constitution during Emergency through the notorious Article 31D introduced via Section 5 of the 42nd Constitution (Amendment Act) 1976. Indira Gandhi used the Article to wipe the Constitution clean of fundamental rights during Emergency. It also defined 'anti-national' activity as any action taken with the intention to (1) bring about cession or secession of a part of the territory of India; (2) disclaim, question, threaten or disrupt the sovereignty and integrity or the security or the unity of India; (3) overthrow by force the GoI; (4) create internal disturbances or disrupt public services and (5) threaten or disrupt the harmony between different religious, racial, regional groups or castes or communities.



OPINION

award-winning fiction writer

To be fair to Indira, it was not a bad attempt, considering the nefarious intentions behind it. What she used it for proved more deadly to the nation than to her targets. Though Article 31D was repealed, the phrase found a permanent place in the mainstream political discourse.

Today 'anti-national' is a catchphrase of the governing classes, many editors, anchors and reporters across the media, leaders and spokespersons of various Hindutva groups, and even the police and the secret services — perhaps, also the lower echelons of the judiciary. It has come a long way from Ambedkar and Indira. In terms of criminal investigation procedure, it seems to translate mainly into Section 124A of the IPC which deals with sedition, and the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) which is concerned with terrorism. The first is part of the colonial legacy and the second, of the Congress legacy. The simplicity of Section 124A takes one's breath away: the bare text is just 71 words. Interestingly, the word 'sedition' does not appear anywhere in it. It was used by the British to arrest freedom fighters including Gandhi, Tilak, and Lajpat Rai.

Gandhi called the Section 'the prince among the political sections of the IPC designed to suppress the liberty of the citizen.' Nehru called it 'objectionable and obnoxious' but it was his government that re-armed Section 124A through the first Amendment to the Constitution in 1951. The ink on the Constitution was hardly dry when the Amendment established curbs on 'abuse' of freedom of speech and of the press, bestowing upon Section 124A pride of place as the tool best suited, in Gandhi's earlier words, 'to suppress the liberty of the citizen.'

The UAPA was enacted under Indira. It had no pretensions of simplicity. It concretised into law the provisions of the 16th Amendment, effected in 1963 under Nehru, empowering 'Parliament to impose, by law, reasonable restrictions in the interests of the sovereignty and integrity of India on the (i) freedom of speech and expression; (ii) right to assemble peacefully and without arms; and right to form associations or unions'. The UAPA also spelt out in elaborate detail the nature of a 'terrorist act'. It is interesting that in both the Amendments that abridged fundamental rights in India, the hand of fate belonged to Nehru. It was left to his daughter to remove fundamental rights altogether from the Constitution — at least for a while.

Today, we are presented with a ubiquitous 'anti-national-for-all-seasons'. The traditional terrorist and seditionist described in the law book and a lot more are re-packaged into the new 'anti-national' whose footprint is discovered everywhere — from the university to the media; from cinema to literature; from the urban to the rural; and the stand-alone activist. We hear of many arrests. Though the new 'anti-national' has come to wield so much power, there appears to be no icon of a 'pro-national' to counter it; no shining model to hold up before the citizenry. But doesn't the nation need a 'pro-national' as well? How long can the 'anti-national' remain the principal deity, the touchstone for nationalism? Can that old workhorse, the patriot, stand up to the 'anti-national'? It seems doubtful because patriotism has suffered so much abuse at the hands of politics in post-independence India that its soul is nearly comatose. Also, a patriot, by definition, is one who loves her/his country so much that she/he is ready to die fighting for it. That is a tall order when one can comfortably earn patriotic badge by the degree of frenzy with which one waves the Tricolour at IPL.

Where patriotism is a by-product of rhetoric and fetish, the patriot model may not help to build a meaningful 'pro-national' model. Perhaps such a 'pro-national' is akin to the idea of a patriot projected by the man who imagined India to begin with, Gandhi. He said, "For me patriotism is the same as humanity. I am patriotic because I am human and humane."

Perhaps, Ambedkar too was imagining a 'pro-national' when he said, "I do not want that our loyalty as Indians should be in the slightest way affected by any competitive loyalty whether that loyalty arises out of our religion, out of our culture or out of our language. I want all people to be Indians first, Indians last and nothing else but Indians." Perhaps, they were just dreamers. But, perhaps, they still make it possible for Indians to say: 'I've a dream!' — a beautiful dream of an India of patriots who are human and humane and are nothing else but Indians.

REALITIES BEYOND THE PEACOCK MOMENT

POINT OF VIEW

T J S GEORGE

NO prime minister has imprinted himself on Indian history as effectively as Narendra Modi has done. Such has been his dominance that when history comes to be written, his years in power will be known as the Modi Period, not the BJP Period.

One reason he will outshine his party is the importance he has always attached to projecting himself as a leader unlike any other. Self-projection always runs the risk of over-doing. Fortunately for Modi, he has no rival in his party or outside it. This naturally works to his advantage politically. But it also prevents him from realising where to draw the line in terms of public relations. This is a serious handicap as became evident on two occasions recently. The first may be called the Peacock Moment and the other the Laptop Moment.

The Peacock Moment was a photographic triumph. How could it not be when peacocks are around? There they were, strutting about as Modi walked through his garden, spreading their spectacular plumage, dancing and pirouetting, hopping and swaying as if inspired by the Prime Minister's presence. With the ever-appreciative media circulating the photographs widely, the effect was dramatic.

The Laptop Moment was less spectacular, but the message it conveyed was important. The pictures left nothing unsaid. We could see him sitting under a tree in a verdant garden. Around him were two white ducks, an open laptop, two books in English, both open, suggesting that they were being read simultaneously, and a newspaper being scanned keenly, not any newspaper but a pink one. Our Prime Minister is of course a multi-tasker, but even a BJP child could see that this was a stage-managed photograph, except the ducks who carried conviction as they tried to look disciplined to suit the occasion.

We live in unusual times when everything must fit into the scheme of a successful leader. A failed leader is dismissed from public memory if he is lucky, humiliated if he is not. A successful leader has all his failures erased from memory. Who remembers that demonetisation was a blunder the consequences of which are still plaguing us? Who recalls the spectacle of 450 million people, rendered jobless overnight, walking from the big cities to their native hinterlands where only misery awaited them? That migration of March-April 2020 will remain etched in the collective memory of India for generations to come.

Some decisions hurt the country so badly but they will be remembered for long even if they are not discussed in public. The most scandalous of these was the decision to scrap the original agreement with France for the purchase of Rafale fighter jets. A new agreement was signed to buy fewer Rafales at three times the original agreed price. India lost heavily for the sake of benefiting a private party who appeared on the scene with no previous experience of aircraft deals. This was one deal where there was not even an attempt to hide the personal interest that superceded the national interest.

> A failed leader is dismissed from public memory if he is lucky, humiliated if he is not. A successful leader has all his failures erased from memory. Who remembers that demonetisation was a blunder the consequences of which are still plaguing us?

All governments do hanky-panky with the national interest. Mahatma Gandhi himself did not try to stop G D Birla from using their personal friendship for business advantage. But earlier governments tried to give the impression that they were not unduly influenced by personal loyalties. They were keen that their actions were seen by the people as fair. It is only now that we see a disregard for public approval of that kind. The Adani-Ambani culture is very different in style from the Birla-Bajaj culture.

That this difference can impact on the foundations of democracy itself must make us pause and look at where we are going. The Modi Government has taken a step to undermine Parliament itself. Taking advantage of the coronavirus scare, it decided to cancel Question Hour in Parliament. This means a Parliament with its front teeth gone. Front teeth have a unique impact. They are important even in a country where Parliament has already lost its molars. All kinds of symbols and signals are clicking around us all the time. Peacocks and ducks appear up front. Unseen behind are hyenas and jackals. They all convey a single message: Yesterday is dead. There was a time when Indian democracy was an inspiration for the rest of Asia. The way things are happening now, it is beginning to look like democracy is shrinking and the distance between India and Pakistan is getting reduced. As the pop lyricist said: We are waiting here for something to save us.

THERE is no solution to death. But bureaucratic cryonics keeps India in deep freeze. Our pachydermatous panjandrums have no intentions to perish. Albert Einstein made a profound and prophetic statement saying, "Bureaucracy is the death of any achievement." Yet Prime Minister Narendra Modi seems to believe that bulging bumbledom can be transformed into a productive asset. Taking forward his penchant for novel innovative initiatives, he has given babudom spiritual indemnity. Recently, he launched yet another digital mission named iGOT-Karmayogi. According to the government, "Mission Karmayogi aims to prepare the Indian Civil Servant for the future by making him more creative, constructive, imaginative, innovative, proactive, professional, progressive, energetic, enabling, transparent and technology-enabled. Empowered with specific role-competencies, the civil servant will be able to ensure efficient service delivery of the highest quality standards." It has been billed as the new administrative architecture known as "National Programme for Civil Services Capacity Building (NPCSCB)."

Excessive corporate jargon only reflects the government's ultimate objective. It expects civil servants to adopt the corporate culture and its tools. Though the Mission is expected to enhance capacity, it creates more posts and institutions. For converting a Sattabhogi (power hungry) civil servant into Karmayogi, the new ordinance envisages multiple new agencies such as the PM-led HR Council, a capacity building commission and a government-owned Special Purpose Vehicle for data collection and management as well as a coordination unit headed by the Cabinet Secretary. This mandarin mantra reflects the government's resolve to ensure a role-based and not a rule-based delivery system. Ample infrastructure and financial support has been made available so that the process moves faster than the files. The NPCSCB's intent and content is quite laudable.

However, Mission Karmayogi suffers from the same defects as India's economic policy. For the past 40 years, the country's monetary and fiscal policies have been driven by supply side economics. Since 1991, almost all the parties, barring the Left, have been blindly endorsing excessive capacity building. Four decades later, the economy is in doldrums due to a lack of demand. By over-emphasising the need for capacity enhancement of the existing humungous establishment, the NDA government has fallen into the trap of the nefarious civil service. The new framework hardly expects accountability and a time-bound delivery system.

Sadly, the survival of the Indian economy and its efficient administration depends on the quality and commitment of its 20 million public officials, who are controlled by around 15,000 IAS officers. Though babus report to the Prime Minister, Union ministers, Chief Ministers and other democratically chosen representatives, they are rarely held accountable for the full and honest implementation of policies and projects finalised by the elected executive.

Even if PMs and CMs are ousted by voters for perceived non-performance, the DMs get promoted. The Indian bureaucracy has been magnanimously rewarded not for its sanguine success but facetious failure. Since they are first to access any information, they often use it against the political leadership to retain their posts. Nicknamed the Indian Automatic Service, its members are assured of not only time-bound promotion but also protection against punitive action for inefficiency.

India is already burdened with an avaricious babudom. A wily public servant is always opposed to any change or constructive disruption that restricts his power play and forces him to pay for his follies. The Prime Minister struck the right cord when he promised that his government would ensure maximum governance with minimum government since he knew that India has a bloated establishment. As Gujarat's chief minister, he was aware of the damage they could do to his dream projects. Five years later, he has been advised to concentrate more on enhancement rather than contraction. If rural India, after 75 years of de-colonisation, lacks an all-weather road, a primary health centre, a properly equipped school and clean potable water supply, who should be held responsible? The fault isn't the politician's alone. Enough funds have been allotted in successive state and central budgets. But no answerability from bureaucrats for the non-utilisation of funds is demanded.

Rajiv Gandhi had revealed that out of a rupee allocated for development, only 15 paisa reaches the people. When the CAG points out financial irregularities in projects and purchases, why should elected representatives alone face judicial wrath and punishment? The file pushers, who habitually concur with every word written on the files that move from one table to the next, seem to get away scot free.

> In fact, India would get better officials if the offices of the PM and CM are manned by outside professionals who can tame the insiders. Unless the pernicious character of the bulky bureaucracy is altered, no mission with even a vision can bring about better governance

The British left behind an administrative architecture that reports to none other than itself. Only an IAS officer is entitled to select other IAS officers and decide on their posting. Mostly, it's an IAS officer who leads the UPSC, which is responsible for holding examinations and selecting All India Services officers. The Secretary of the Appointment Committee of the Cabinet is always from the IAS. RBI Governors and other directors as well as heads of banks, chiefs of the Intelligence agencies and bosses of PSUs are drawn from this lofty pantheon.

It's an irony that an ordinary graduate or post graduate is considered superior to those with superlative professional qualifications. It was a cruel joke that an IAS officer was chosen to draft the first New Education Policy. Yet another retired IAS officer is picked up to decide on the fiscal and other implications of loan interest waivers, while the professionals are mere members. An IAS officer has often been chosen to lead Air India but never has a pilot become the Civil Aviation Secretary. As part of the reform process, India accepted the international practice of setting up regulatory bodies to protect consumer interests. A majority of these regulators are retired civil servants who rarely favour the consumer.

Under the Right to Information Act, both the Centre and the states have created Information Commissions with a total annual outlay of ₹5,000 cr. Again, a large majority of the members are from either the IAS or other Central Services. According to available records, the numbers of secretary-level posts have tripled during the past two decades. Over 100 retired desk jockeys found better re-employment. Even the current format of Mission Karmayogi has been crafted in such a way that it opens up more opportunities for the mighty babus.

The bureaucracy has sabotaged yet another attempt to ensure the selection of the best officer for a post. Modi introduced a 360-degree selection process to select outsiders and insiders to handle sensitive posts. But the IAS lobby ensured that most of the selectors were from their fraternity.

In fact, India would get better officials if the offices of the Prime Minister and Chief Minister are manned by outside professionals who can tame the insiders. Unless the pernicious character of the bulky bureaucracy is altered, no mission with even a vision can bring about better governance. The taming and training of the men in safari suits needs an iron hand. Indian beadledom needs dehancement and not enhancement of the bureaucratic clout to operate a responsive conveyor belt of karma yogis.

Let court decide Periya case

People respect investigation by the CBI for its reliability, impartiality, and depth. That is the general norm. Exceptions may be there. Why is the Kerala government opposing a CBI probe into the Periya twin murder case allegedly involving the CPM ? The government has now appealed to the apex court against the Kerala High Court order handing over the case to the CBI. The LDF government is spending millions in advocates' remuneration only to see that the case is investigated by Kerala Police! Why is the government afraid of the CBI ? Is not the court more competent to decide who should investigate a case?

Bail out troubled loan takers

When failed crop /agriculture loans are written off, why not the loans of industry or any other venture? Similarly on failure of any non-agricultural venture, write-off loans or have constructive alternatives. No need of any blame game to bankers and farmers or others. Failure makes the loan taker economically disabled to pay it back (in most of the cases). Even government shuts down its failed venture / sells it off to others. Every thing is "trial & error', not in human hands. Hence by commonsense, write-off failure-venture loans or show constructive alternatives without troubling bank employees and loan takers.

Pranab's death leaves a void

Pranab Mukherjee was a quintessential politicial titan (Two Indian leadership styles: citizen Pranab vs. pratham sevak Modi, Sept. 12). Had he become the Prime Minister of the country in 2004, the histories of India and the Congress would have been quite different. The composure, grace and poise that he had shown to work under Manmohan Singh were exceptional and remarkable. He brought exposture, dignity and grace to every office that he occupied. He was indeed a great store of experience, knowledge and versatility. Pranab-da virtually earned and eminently deserved the Bharat Ratna.

Time for thinking, not fighting

Kerala health minister's endorsement of homeopathy for Covid treatment has kick started a row in the medical fraternity. The hope of a cure was shattered when the AstraZeneca-Oxford suspended its phase III trial across the world. Meanwhile the Indian Council of Medical Research's confirmation of plasma therapy ineffective was a double shock. Incidentally, the Chinese testimony of treating 92 percent of the Covid patients there with Traditional Chinese Medicine is a case in point we have to keep in mind before triggering controversies.

Rights are not absolute

Freedom of media in India is indeed manifestation of constitutional fundamental right of freedom of expression. This right was unreasonably curtailed by Congress rule during Emergency period while Indira Gandhi was then PM.(TJS George's Point of View - Sept.6).Perhaps India is the only country which is enjoying maximum such freedom. In fact, the writer has projected uncharitably by exaggerating certain aberrations visible during the present rule by the Modi government.Moreover,it is pertinent to point out that no fundamental right is absolute. However,courts have upheld reasonable restrictions necessary for ensuring smooth conduct of democracy in our grand country.

Nadda says NDA in Bihar united as Chirag mellows

Chirag Paswan criticism of the Chief Minister had raised doubts about the LJP fighting the election under Nitish Kumar's leadership

RAJESH THAKUR @ Patna

Bihar CM Nitish Kumar greets Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) National President JP Nadda at his official residence in Patna | PTI

THE BJP has said it will contest the Bihar polls along with its allies, including Chirag Paswan-led LJP, under the leadership of JD-U chief Nitish Kumar.

The remarks from BJP chief JP Nadda came on a day when Chirag Paswan tried to play down his party's differences with JD-U. "There is no rift between the JD-U and LJP," Chirag told a news channel, adding what he has been saying all along meant that the people's problems should be brought to the knowledge of Chief Minister Nitish Kumar.

The tone and tenor of Chirag sought to clear the wrinkles within the NDA as Nadda led a team of party seniors to a meeting with Nitish, which lasted around 40 minutes and focused on the tricky question of seat-sharing. Nadda went to the party office and launched the party's Atmanirbhar campaign. He said all NDA allies — the BJP, JD-U, LJP and HAM — are united and will fight the polls without any differences.

"The NDA under the leadership of Nitish Kumar will form the government again as the people have trust in the alliance. The Opposition has lost the people's trust", he said, adding there were no differences in the NDA over seat-sharing. He said the 'culture of politics' in the country changed after 2014 with Narendra Modi becoming the Prime Minister. It has shifted from 'politics of preaching' to 'politics of performances'. "Gone are the days when politics was being done for the sake of politics. Now, a new era of development politics has begun through atmanirbhar Bharat (self reliant India)," he said.

Nadda said India cannot be self-reliant unless Bihar becomes one. "The NDA has a set of leaders who would do good not only for the state but also for the nation. When the people of Bihar can be achievers outside the state, why can't they develop their own state given the right opportunities?" he said.

He also launched a theme song of the party for the Assembly elections and asked party leaders and workers to act as a bridge between the people and the NDA government.

Raghuvansh open letter targets Lalu's family

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @Patna

RAGHUVANSH Prasad Singh, who recently resigned from the Rashtriya Janta Dal (RJD), has written another emotional letter expressing his anguish and agony over the situation.

In the letter written on Thursday, Singh obliquely slammed the family of RJD supremo Lalu Prasad Yadav without naming him. The hand-written letter is being widely shared on social media.

Singh, who was put on life support system by doctors at AIIMS Delhi on Friday, has quit the party via a hand-written letter couple of days ago.

"Politics means fighting against evils and religion means doing good. There has been such a decline in the present-day politics that poses a threat to democracy," the letter begins. Singh says that the names and ideologies of Mahatma Gandhi, Jay Prakash Narayan, Dr. RM Lohia, Baba Saheb and Jananayak Karpoori Thakur have gone missing.

"Instead of pictures of these five great men, the images of five members of a family are being printed now," he adds in an indirect shot at the Lalu family.

Instead of pictures of these five great men, the images of five members of a family are being printed now
Raghuvansh Prasad Singh, former RJD leader

"Now feudalism, casteism, dynasty, nepotism, communalism have come in place of socialism. These are all the same evils against which socialism was born", he writes.

"To earn money by getting a position and to find a position of higher profit by earning money has become a way in politics. According to the definition of politics, all these evils have to be fought", he says. Singh adds that some parties are denying the rights of their workers due to horse-trading of tickets and voters.

"When the system of votes collapses, how can democracy be saved?' Singh questions.

Bhushan moves SC, seeks right to appeal in contempt case

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

ADVOCATE Prashant Bhushan on Saturday filed a petition in the Supreme Court seeking a declaration that a person convicted by the Supreme Court for criminal contempt, including Bhushan, has a right to intra-Court appeal.

Bhushan was convicted by a three-Judge bench of the Supreme Court in August for criminal contempt of Court in relation to two of his tweets where Bhushan had criticized the Chief Justice of India and former CJIs. After he was held guilty for contempt, Bhushan was fined Re 1 as punishment for this offence.

In his plea, Bhushan has prayed for a direction declaring that persons convicted by the Supreme Court have a right to an intra-Court appeal to be heard by a larger and different Bench.

He also prayed for a direction for framing of rules and guidelines providing for intra-court appeal against conviction in original criminal contempt cases.

Alternatively though, Bhushan has prayed that a review petition filed against such conviction orders may be heard by a different bench in open court.

This petition, Bhushan's plea says, has been filed seeking enforcement of fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 14, 19 and 21 of the Constitution of India and stated, "Laying down of such guidelines would bring in procedural safeguards."

Criminal contempt of Court also involves having an effect on the contemnor's liberty and as such, it is pertinent that such guidelines be formulated, the petition stated.

NGT wants e-retailers fined for plastic use

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE National Green Tribunal has directed the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) to conduct environmental audit and recover fine from Amazon and Flipkart for violation of environmental norms and expressed its displeasure at lack of action against excessive use of plastic in packaging by the companies.

NGT noted that the authorities concerned were not following the dictum of polluter pays even as there were statutory norms prescribing this. The NGT then asked the CPCB to take necessary steps in the matter and file an action taken report by October 14.

"A report has been filed by the CPCB, which again mentions one or other reasons for not enforcing the law but does not mention the coercive measures adopted either directly by the CPCB or in coordination with the state pollution control boards," a bench headed by NGT Chairperson Justice A K Goel said.

The CPCB has earlier told the NGT that e-commerce giants need to fulfil their extended producer responsibility under the Plastic Waste Management Rules, 2016, and need to establish a system for collecting back the plastic waste generated due to the packaging of their products, the CPCB had earlier told the NGT.

In-flight rules: DGCA double standards slammed

KUMAR VIKRAM @ New Delhi

TAKING into cognisance the unruly scenes witnessed in an IndiGo aircraft that flew actor Kangana Ranaut from Chandigarh to Mumbai, aviation regulator DGCA on Saturday said that the schedule of the flight to a particular route will be suspended for two weeks if anyone is found doing photography inside it.

"It has been decided that from now on, in case any violation (photography) occurs on any scheduled passenger aircraft – the schedule of flight for that particular route shall be suspended for a period of two weeks from the next day (of the incident)," the DGCA said in a statement Saturday.

However, aviation experts have strongly reacted alleging double standards on part of DGCA. They said that the regulator should ensure appropriate action against the airline as well as the unruly passengers as it happened in a recent case involving stand up comedian Kunal Kamra.

Reacting on this, aviation expert Captain Mohan Ranganathan said, "It is a safety violation. The TV journalists were moving around inside the flight when seat belt signs are on. You don't need the airline to inquire. Evidence is there in front of you. DGCA should have taken action as it took in the case of Kunal Kamra."

Another expert, Captain Shakti Lumba took to the Twitter to react and said, "Why have all these television reporters not been put on the "no fly list" you did it in a flash like "Sudden" (in the old westerns) in an earlier now famous case & that too before a complaint was filed by anybody."

The DGCA order on Saturday stated that as per Rule 13 of the Aircraft Rules 1937, no person is allowed to take photographs inside a flight, except when permission is granted by the DGCA or the Civil Aviation Ministry.

It said that this permission is not applicable when the aircraft is landing or taking off at a defence aerodrome. "In spite of these regulations, it has been noted that at times, airlines have failed to follow stipulations primarily because of lack of diligence on their part," the order noted.

"Needless to say that such deviations result in compromise in maintaining the highest standards of safety and therefore, is not to be allowed," it mentioned.

Big gender divide in top scientific institutions

RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

REPRESENTATION of women in India's top scientific and educational institutions such as IITs, NITs and Council of Scientific and Industrial Research showed a wide gap in gender equality. The IITs showed the steepest divide with average number of women faculty being 11.24%, says a study.

The study by the Institute of Bioinformatics and Biotechnology, Savitribai Phule Pune University, Pune, observed the recruitment pattern in various science-related streams of various prominent institutions/universities over the years. The study was published in the latest edition of the scientific journal Current Science.

"It is clear that irrespective of the year of establishment, eminence and geographical distribution, all research and teaching institutions in India show a similar pattern in employing women faculty/researchers, merely 10–20 per cent of the total strength, with very few exceptions," said authors Akanksha Swarup and Tuli Dey.

The first group of seven IITs established between 1951 and 2001 showed an average of 10.74% women faculty in the Science and Technology stream, followed by 11.6% in the second set (2008-09; eight IITs) and 11.33% in the third set (2012-16; eight IITs).

"It can be assumed that the dearth of qualified women candidates remained the same (in IITs) from 1951 to 2018," the study noted. However, the profile of the faculty in the top 20 universities of the country differed significantly, as the average number of women faculty was 27.11%. "This can be probably explained by the fact that these universities handle teaching and research mostly related to basic sciences rather than technical subjects," it said.

Among the universities, IISc, Bengaluru was most male-dominated with 8.6% female faculty, while Amritha Vishwa Vidyapeetham (45.8%) and Savitribai Phule Pune University, Pune (40.53%) stood out with most balanced distribution of gender within India.

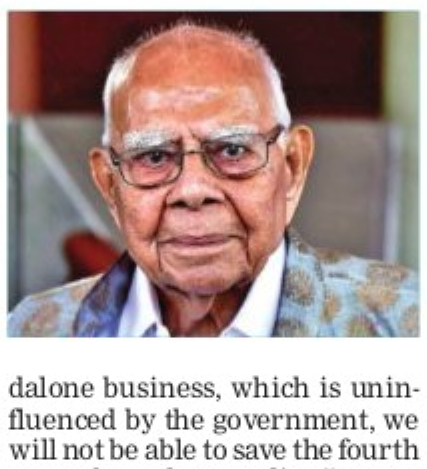
'Ram Jethmalani would have blasted media trial'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi



LEGAL luminaries on Saturday remembered late senior advocate Ram Jethmalani and discussed pros and cons of trial by media during the first lecture memorial series.

Attorney General K K Venugopal termed Jethmalani a warrior of corruption and said, "He was a fighter for corruption and filed so many PILs and cases against it." SG Tushar Mehta said, "Media trial is a topic close to Ram's heart. Nobody would have blasted the media like Ram. At the same time, he was the darling of the media."

Pointing towards the violation of norms in media, senior advocate Kapil Sibal said, "Today the media has reincarnated itself into a public court. They do not just make suggestive innuendos but direct allegations. And some of them even instigate violence. Unless media becomes a standalone business, which is uninfluenced by the government, we will not be able to save the fourth estate from the nosedive."

Senior advocate Harish Salve said, "The problem starts when media becomes a parallel system of rule of noise and the rule of noise starts displacing the rule of law. Indian judicial system in high profile cases have become a circus. Media does not believe in any thing called law of evidence. Trial by court of law has been replaced by trial by embarrassment."

States struggle to meet rising demand for oxygen

IN Maharashtra, 24 manufacturers produce a total of about 1,000 metric tonnes (MTs) of oxygen per day. With the pandemic raging on, the demand for health purposes alone has gone up to 900 MTs per day as against 400 MTs earlier. There are 66 oxygen refilling units in the state.

Arun Unhale, Commissioner, of Food and Drugs Administration, admitted that the demand for oxygen from hospitals had increased significantly, but added that "the patients are not suffering not because of a shortage of oxygen… We have sufficient oxygen there is no need for panic".

The Maharashtra government's decision restricting supply of oxygen to other states made Madhya Pradesh jitter, with Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan dialling his counterpart to reconsider the decision. MP, too, reported a few Covid-19 deaths, allegedly due to lack of oxygen, though the authorities denied the same. At least three patients were reported to have died at a private hospital in Dewas district on September 8. The district's chief medical officer, however, said upon inspection, 400 oxygen cylinders were found to be available at the hospital, where 156 patients were admitted.

The Chouhan government, however, is not depending on Maharashtra and has taken steps to augment oxygen supply. The CM had earlier said 120 tonnes of oxygen per day was available to the state and the supply would be increased to 150 tonnes by September 30. The state is making arrangements for supply from Gujarat and Uttar Pradesh. In Indore, the worst-hit district in MP, the administration on Friday directed all oxygen producing plants to operate on full capacity and supply the entire oxygen for medical use. A 200-tonne oxygen plant will be operational in six months in Hoshangabad district.

In Punjab, per day demand for medical oxygen has gone up from 15-20 MTs before pandemic to 100 MTs now and is expected to increase to 165 MTs daily by September 30, with positive cases estimated to touch one lakh in a few days.

To meet the demand, the state's Principal Secretary (Industries and Commerce), Alok Shekhar, has shot off letters to his counterparts in Haryana, Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand, requesting them to direct the manufacturing plants in their respective states to increase the supply to Punjab. Manufacturers and re-filling units in the state, too, have been told to scale up production. The industries department has asked all 16 oxygen manufacturers and suppliers in Punjab, who were earlier supplying only 20 per cent of their oxygen for hospitals, to utilise the production capacity mainly for medical-grade oxygen.

In Uttar Pradesh, a few districts like Agra and Jhansi have reported shortage. In Agra the shortage has been attributed to the high demand in Delhi as both the national capital and the city of Taj Mahal source their supply from NCR-based units. Similarly, Jhansi depends on neighbouring MP which itself is facing oxygen shortage.

3 U'khand dists to get air defence radars

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Dehradun

AMID the border tensions with China and Nepal, the Indian Air Force (IAF) plans to set up air defence radars in three districts of Uttarakhand, including Chamoli, Pithoragarh and Uttarkashi. Air Marshal Rajesh Kumar, AOC-in-C, Central Air Command, discussed the land transfer for setting up the radars with CM Trivendra Singh Rawat in Dehradun on Friday.

A statement released by the Chief Minister's office said: "The Air Marshal requested the Chief Minister to make the land available for extension of airports in Pantnagar, Jolly Grant and Pithoragarh along with a new airport in Chaukhutia."

Following this, the government and the IAF have decided to appoint their respective nodal officers, who will work jointly, to identify the land.

The Air Marshal added that the facilities for the radars and airstrips at appropriate sites in Uttarakhand were essential in view of the current situation at the borders. State government officials informed the IAF that land has been identified in Bhaisoli village of Almora district for setting up an Air Defence Radar and the process for its availability will be expedited after identification of sites at other places.

In July, government had sent a proposal to the Centre, requesting the IAF to prepare at least three advanced landing grounds in border areas to help armed forces transport troops and material to the border.

IS SHIV SENA GOING BACK TO ITS HOOLIGAN WAYS?

Recent incidents suggest that the party is back to its old politics of 'threat and intimidation'

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

WHEN Aaditya Thackeray, the third scion of the Thackerays, entered politics and walked inside the Assembly as an MLA from Worli last year, many thought the Shiv Sena had transformed itself. The old style of threatening opponents and the Marathi Manoos exclusivist agenda appeared a thing of the past. But the recent incidents involving an assault on a retired naval officer and partdemolition of Kangana Ranaut's office have belied those hopes. The Sena is back to its game, analysts say.

Sena strongman Bal Thackeray had built his political career and expanded his party on hate and bigotry. Thackeray first targeted south Indians with a slogan of Bajao pungi, Bhagavo lungi, then north Indians, Muslims, Dalits and others to consolidate his position among staunch Marathi and Hindu voters in Mumbai and elsewhere in Maharashtra.

Vaibhav Purandare, the author of 'Bal Thackeray and the rise of Shiv Sena,' says Shiv Sena remains stuck in its old mirror image at a time when an emerging Maharashtra gives precedence to jobs, health and environment. The basic idea behind bringing in Aaditya and sewing up an alliance with secular parties was to project an appearance of reinvention.

"Bal Thackeray was a charismatic leader who would get away with his controversial statements. But the current leadership is neither as much charismatic nor in the Opposition," says Purandare.

"The Sena has to realize that it is the ruling party, and that it cannot create a law and order problem. "It is not always necessary to react to every statement and action directed against you. During Bal Thackeray's time, Sena's hooliganism was of a different kind— the Sainiks would threaten the government or a local corporation on popular issues".

Shiv Sena's image problem

The problem, he says, is that Shiv Sena is stuck with the image issue. "If they stop reacting strongly, the people would say the party is losing its grip over Mumbai. And if they react strongly as they did in the Kangna Ranaut case, then they have to face public criticism. They have to carefully decide the way forward," Purandare pointed out.

Raju Parulekar, senior journalist and writer who has seen the rise and fall and rise of the Shiv Sena, says the current approach of the leadership will surely help the party to remain in the dominant position.

He says political party workers need catharsis. "Sena workers achieve it by showing off power and doing something openly. Then, Sena's cadre is different from the Congress' and the NCP's. They need to be charged up. They have a history of bouncing back by their street smart politics," Parulekar said.

A former Shiv Sena minister who is a close aide of CM Uddhav Thackeray says the party never starts a showdown, "but if some comes its way, then it doesn't spare". "Kangna Ranaut is a film actor. No sane person would tolerate her remarks against the Mumbai city and Maharashtra. She called Mumbai Pak occupied Kashmir (PoK), Pakistan, and even called the BMC workers as Babur's army. There is a limit. So we decided to give it back. Those who stay in glass houses should not throw stones at others, simple," he said.

'Kangana part of BJP design'

Marathi writer and blogger Avinash Usha Vasant says the BJP wants to snatch Sena's dominance over Mumbai and Bollywood by exploiting the Sushant Singh Rajput case. "Kangana Ranaut is one of the persons who are a part of this design. Shiv Sena has the strongest union in Bollywood which can make or break any film. The BJP is trying to make inroads into the film world by targeting a few Bollywood people," said Avinash.

But he says the demography of Mumbai is changing fast. "Some decades back, Marathas accounted for nearly 60 per cent of voters. Today, that number is only 28 per cent. A cursory glance at the name plates of big housing societies can give us the real picture of Mumbai."

"So, Shiv Sena has to not only project itself in the reinvention mode, but it has to reinvent itself in reality— and quickly before the people's trust in it evaporates and the Congress and NCP pull the plug," Purandare said.

UNIFORM CODE

Raj govt changes school dress again, parents face the burden

RAJESH ASNANI @ Jaipur

AFTER changing the school curriculum and colour of the 'saffron' bicycles awarded to the students, the Ashok Gehlot government has changed the the uniforms for government school students in Rajasthan. About 77 lakh students will now have to get new uniforms as the state government claimed said that the colours of previous uniform, decided three year ago by the Vasundhara Raje government, had a political intent to divide the community. While it is not certain when schools will re-open due to the pandemic, the government's decision to junk the earlier uniform will cost parents a huge sum of over ₹450 crores collectively.

In 2017, the BJP government had introduced new school uniforms after a gap of almost 20 years which were identical to the RSS uniform.

State Education Minister Govind Singh Dotasara claimed that many parents and students had complained that the uniform was intended to divide the community.

"We have decided to change these uniforms as students should be kept away from any reflection of political ideology. But final decision on the recommendation will be taken after consulting the chief minister," he added.

Education experts feel that there is lack of rules for school uniforms. Under normal circumstances, parents should be informed at least one year in advance for any change in uniform.

Rajasthan has 75 lakh students in Government schools of which 41 lakhs are girls. According to estimates, the dress of each girl costs around ₹650 as a result ₹266 crores will have to be spent if these new dresses are to be created for the students.

Many have questioned that when private schools are not allowed to change uniform in less than five years, why is the state government insisting on changing it within three years. "The government should be focusing more on improving the quality of education and ensuring better online education," an expert said.

However, the real problem is for the parents who will have to get these new uniforms made. The parents had already been forced to spend a lot of money due to constant change in books, uniforms and other aspects of school education in the last few years due to political decisions. The change in school uniforms will add to that burden.

"At a time when students are worried about missing classes because of lack of infrastructure for online education, a discussion on the colour of uniforms is untimely and inappropriate," said Vipin Sharma, the Vice President of Rajasthan Primary and Secondary Teacher's Union.

China hands over five Arunachal youths

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

CHINA on Saturday morning handed over five youths of Arunachal Pradesh to Indian authorities near Kibithu border post in Anjaw district. Toch Singkam, Prasat Ringling, Dongtu Ebiya, Tanu Baker and Ngaru Diri — hailing from Upper Subansiri district — went missing from Tungdara Mountain near the LAC since September 2. The incident came to light when two others, who had gone out along with them but managed to escape, narrated "abduction by the People's Liberation Army" before locals.

"Indian Army took over all five individuals at Kibithu on September 12 after completing the formalities. They will now be quarantined for 14 days as per Covid-19 protocol and will thereafter be handed over to their family members," defence spokesperson Lt Col Harsh Wardhan Pande said.

Arunachal Pradesh is known for its rich natural heritage and adventurous people fond of exploring the nature for medicinal herbs and possessing flair for hunting which involves surviving for weeks in jungles and far-flung remote areas. "During such forays, at times youth have inadvertently strayed to other side of LAC," Pande said.

This is the third such incident in Arunachal this year. China had handed over individuals in the previous two incidents as well. "In the latest case, five individuals had inadvertently strayed across LAC recently. Indian Army approached PLA on hotline to trace and return them. On September 8, response on the hotline confirmed that the missing individuals had been traced," he said.

NAMITA BAJPAI @Lucknow

WB: Left eyes alliance as Adhir takes Cong charge

PRANAB MONDAL @Kolkata

WITH Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury taking charge as the Bengal Congress chief, the Left Front parties are gearing up for an alliance ahead of the 2021 Assembly elections to battle against both the ruling TMC and the BJP. Chowdhury, known to be a bitter critic of CM Mamata Banerjee, was one of those in favour of an alliance with CPI(M) in 2019 Lok Sabha elections. He has said that Congress is ready to join hands with the Left Front.

Describing the TMC and the BJP are two sides of the same coin, Chowdhury said, ''Given the present political situation in the state, Left Front is a natural ally of the Congress. The fight in 2021 election will be primarily between secularism and communalism. Secular ideology of the Congress will defeat the communal rhetoric of BJP and TMC. In alliance with the Left parties, Congress wants to put up a spirited battle against the misrule in the state.''

The Congress and Left Front had fought together in 2016 assembly polls but the tie-up fell apart during the Lok Sabha elections polls over the Raiganj seat. While the CPI(M) wanted to field the then sitting MP Mohammad Selim, Congress insisted on Deepa Dasmunshi.

In 2016, Congress had emerged as the main opposition party in the assembly. Though, the 2016 alliance did not help the party to get its desired seats, the CPI(M) was keen to fight with Congress in the 2019 Lok Sabha elections.

"In 2019, we suffered a drop of around 13 per cent in out vote bank and the BJP enjoyed a gain of same vote share. A large section of our supporters, who were against Mamata, shifted their allegiance to the BJP. So alliance with the Congress will definitely help to bring back a section of our supporters," said a CPI(M) leader.

Welcoming Chowdhury's induction, CPI(M) politburo member Mohammad Selim said, "His appointment would ensure our alliance. The unity of the Congress and the Left is essential to protect the secular fabric of the state.''

'Rhea a victim of BJP's vote politics'

KOLKATA: Congress workers took out a protest march against the alleged politically motivated attack on actor Rhea Chakraborty in Kolkata on Saturday. Earlier, state Congress chief Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury had criticised the Centre for targeting Rhea. The decision to support Rhea is said to be a move to woo Bengali sentiments ahead of the assembly elections. A senior Congress leader said that it was clear how Rhea is a victim of BJP's vote-bank politics using Sushant Singh Rajput's image as 'son of Bihar' to benefit in the state elections.

Fed up with his brother-in-law being harassed by cops over the woman's false complaint, the man living in first struck a friendship with the woman over the phone. Later, he called the woman to meet him at a desolate place in Panna, where his two brothers-in-law murdered her.

Documents of some more land and properties have been seized also. The sleuths also have found many bank passbooks.

Youth gets ₹60,000 for minister's haircut

A young man who sought help to set up a hair salon was asked by the minister and local BJP MLA Kunwar Vijay Shah to prove his haircutting and shaving skills during a public event in Khandwa district on Friday. Much to the surprise of the young man Rohidas, the minister asked him to come on the stage and give him a haircut and shave. Wearing the protective mask, Rohidas cut the minister's hair and also gave him a shave. The minister not only appreciated the haircutting and shaving skills but also promptly gave him ₹60,000. IPL IS BACK, MUCH TO THE DISMAY OF NEWS CHANNELS!

GURBIR SINGH

IT'S heartening to know that our annual cricket extravaganza, IPL 2020, is finally set to take off in the UAE from September 19. The 53-day jamboree goes all the way till November 10. Hopefully fast-moving cricket will provide wholesome entertainment to a pandemic-hit nation currently being fed bread and circuses by news channels obsessed with Sushant Singh Rajput and Kangana Ranaut.

The Covid lockdown has frozen all sporting events. News channels had an opportunity. Unhappily they squandered it and sank to the basest. They have been garnering flaky viewership on anything but news. Pitched against IPL 2020, it will be interesting to see whether they can hold on to their TRPs; or crumble as petty flash-in-the-pans they have always been. Hope against hope, they might be forced to return to their original domain—reporting news!

Disney Star India chairman Uday Shankar, knowing the magnetism of cricket, is promising a TV viewership of over 550 million, compared to 462 million the Star network achieved last year. That's just under half the nation hooked on cricket! To get this reach, Shankar is rolling out seven broadcast feeds targeting different languages and regions, 90 commentators and 18 hours of live and special programming a day to keep everyone hooked.

A world without sports

Internationally, the damage in money terms because of sports cancellations has been huge. The International Olympics Committee (IOC) cancelled the Tokyo 2020 Olympics and has rescheduled it to next year from 23 July to 8 August. The cost of the cancelled Olympics is estimated at anything up to $25.2 billion. Media giant Comcast paid $4.4 billion for Olympic rights from 2014 to 2020. Much of all these investments will be washed away.

Sports has never had it so bad since World War II. The International Tennis Federation (ITF) has postponed 900 tournaments across all its circuits. The 2020 Wimbledon tennis championships have been cancelled. The Boston Marathon has been dropped for the first time in its 124-year history.

The world's most watched sport, football, too has taken a huge toll. While club league football in Europe and elsewhere is resuming slowly, big tournaments like South America's Copa America and the Euro 2020 Cup have been postponed till next year. FIFA has said it is taking a hit of $800 million this year, and is worried about the World Cup scheduled for 2022. European football clubs are expected to lose $4.5 billion over the next year, according to a European Club Association study.

"The results (of the study) demonstrate that the financial impact of COVID-19 on European clubs is already a seismic shock," ECA chief executive officer Charlie Marshall said.

Too much riding on IPL

For the Indian Premier League (IPL), the richest of world tournaments, scheduled to start in March this year, cancellation was not an option. To make a comeback, it was fighting not only the pandemic but the fallout with China. Losing a slew of Chinese brands that advertise on IPL platforms hasn't been easy.

For the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI), which owns IPL, the stakes are high. It had sold the digital and broadcasting rights to Star India for a humungous ₹3,300 crore, and even collected ₹2,000 crore upfront. Besides this, the title sponsorship had been sold to Chinese handset brand Vivo for ₹440 crore. Other sponsorship deals had been signed for an additional ₹200 crore.

For Disney Star India, too, IPL is big. The broadcasting network had bought digital and broadcast rights for the T20 game in 2017 for 5 years for a massive ₹16,348 crore or ₹3,270 crore a year. Its strategy for growth in India is now symbiotically linked to cricket, and sports in general.

Now that the tournament is on, Star spokespersons are sounding upbeat. Star Sports CEO Gautam Thakkar says he has sold 75 per cent of his on-air inventory. A week ago he said the network had signed on 15 sponsors including Dream 11, Amazon, PhonePe and Byju's, as well as more than 60 other advertisers. Market chatter says spot sales may be at ₹12.5 lakh for 10-second ads.

It's still not yet clear whether Disney Star will be able to match the returns of IPL 2019. Last year, it had raked in ₹2,200 crore (including robust digital revenue via Disney + Hotstar). This year seems an uphill task considering the IPL brand is considerably dented. It is evident from the re-sale of the title sponsorship, after Vivo backed off, to fantasy sports operator Dream11 for ₹222 crore. This is half of what Vivo had paid for the property. Besides, the UAE is not the coolest of venues, and the impact of matches sans cheering audiences is yet to be seen.

There could be losses, but then the hit would have been larger had IPL been shelved. Just as well too, as it will provide certain relief from the news channels!

'Govt didn't address NPAs until 2017'

Former Niti Aayog VC Panagariya says the bad loan crisis is a problem that has not been fixed

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

BLAMING high NPAs for India's slowing growth, Former vice-chairman of NITI Aayog, Arvind Panagariya has said that the government made a mistake by not paying attention to his warnings regarding Non-Performing Assets (NPAs) when he was with the government think tank. He also warned that this remains a challenge since the matter has not been addressed yet.

Panagriya was speaking at a session of The New Indian Express' Express Expressions, a series of conversations with people of eminence, and was in conversation with Prabhu Chawla, Editorial Director, The New Indian Express group and author and columnist Shankkar Aiyar.

Panagariya noted that despite pushing hard during his stint at Niti Aayog, he could not prevent the slide. "Let's take 4.2 per cent growth (FY2019-20). And that is the result of one key mistake that the government made, and I had rallied for that mistake not to have happened because I was there at Niti Aayog at that time. But I wasn't successful," the Columbia University Professor said. He attributed the mistake to the poor understanding of NPAs by the Department of Financial Services.

"By late 2013, I was convinced that the NPAs are very large, that they were just hidden as restructured loans and the government needed to move. That was one of the key problems I mentioned that the government needed to solve. After coming to Niti Aayog, I again internally pushed for it, but sadly, you know, the Department of Financial Services had no understanding," he said.

Panagariya also said that then RBI governor Raghuram Rajan just addressed the symptoms. "Then Governor of RBI (Raghuram Rajan) also was playing along, largely. So, he just addressed the symptoms. He did the right things in terms of making the hidden NPAs to become explicit, but then he did not take the actions that were required at the time. He delayed.. and action did not actually start till early 2017 when credit growth completely collapsed. And that is when the urgency was felt and then I think that the order was issued from the very top," he noted.

Panagariya thinks the problem has not gone away, especially in light of recent restructuring measures. "I think we have finally paid for that and that weakness remains. So, we went into Covid with significant weakness in the economy and that will still have to be addressed," he said.

However, despite the challenges, he remains bullish about the Indian growth story. "The onslaught of Covid may colour somebody else's vision, not mine. I think the long term prospects for India is very positive. Covid has brought the growth rate down to negative of almost 24 per cent for the particular quarter for which the latest data have been released. But that is in line with what has happened elsewhere. And if you also look at which sectors have shrunk more and which have not, you can see the footprint of Covid all over. So, I don't read that as saying anything about the long term prospects of the country," he said.

EXPRESS expressions FEAR NONE. FAVOUR NONE

After coming to Niti Aayog, I again internally pushed for (fixing high NPAs), but sadly, you know, the Department of Financial Services had no understanding

Arvind Panagariya, former VC, Niti Aayog

However, he admitted that India could have been a lot better prepared to handle the pandemic. "But unfortunately, you know, we did not prepare ourselves. So, when it began to show up in January, February, we had no masks, we had no PPEs. Some basic preparedness was lacking. So, I would say that that preparedness was a bit of a problem," he said.

With the central bank going ahead with restructuring of bad loans, he added that financial market weakness remains a major challenge. "We will need to fix the stress in the financial markets. I think that will have to be priority number one as we come out of Covid," he said adding that "privatisation of profits and socialisation of losses" needs to stop.

"I think financial sector reforms are very critical, within which I would privatise most public sector banks. If the government is hesitant, keep the State Bank of India, it's a bank that is well run, the government is running it well. It's also the largest bank and that, I think, should suffice for social goals," he noted, adding that reforms in trade and labour were also needed. He also pushed for aggressive asset monetisation. "This was my mission, but at the end of the day, it still has not happened," he said.

Need for flexible workspaces drives 10% rise in WeWork India's enterprise clients

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

IN a biWith enterprises hit by the pandemic looking to cut costs, many are giving up office spaces and instead adopting a flexible workspace model. Co-working major WeWork India, headquartered in Bengaluru, has consequently seen a 10 per cent increase in its enterprise client base since the lockdown. Enterprise clients now comprise 60 per cent of its client base, with the rest spread between startups, freelancers, and SMBs, says Varun Gopinath, Chief Revenue Officer, WeWork India in an interview with The New Indian Express. Excerpts:

Q&A

In a post-pandemic scenario, how important a role will co-working spaces play?

We are now witnessing several companies adopting flexible work solutions and gravitating towards flexible working schedules through the implementation of rostered work shifts, de-densification of office spaces, and Work Near Home (WNH). We believe this situation presents a unique opportunity for flexible workspace providers such as WeWork, to support businesses as they reconsider their fixed asset investments in order to bring in flexibility and save on overhead costs. As the economy begins to find its way back to growth, flexible workspaces will play an even more important role in rationalizing costs and maintaining financial agility.

After the recent $100 million infusion from the parent company, what is the strategy in place for India?

We will be able to efficiently execute our India strategy focused around profitability and great member experience. We-Work is also keen to strengthen conversations and restructure partnerships with landlords via newer formats like revenue sharing leases.

Has your client base seen any changes?

We have seen a 10 per cent growth in our enterprise portfolio since the lockdown which itself speaks volume about the kind of traction we are witnessing from enterprise members and how confident they are towards flexible workspaces. WeWork India now consists of 60 per cent enterprise members and the remaining 40 per cent is a healthy mix of startups, freelancers, and SMBs. We have also recently welcomed Khaitan & Co. as members.

Capital buffers, liquidity vital for MFIs: RBI

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

STRESSING on the need to build capital buffers and manage liquidity, the Reserve Bank of India has warned that the pandemic can prove to be the "biggest tail risk event" for microfinance institutions (MFIs) in a long time. At this juncture, MFIs should learn from the past and adopt responsible lending practices to ensure that loan amounts are commensurate with the borrower's ability to repay and that there are no instances of overlending, it said.

"COVID-19 is perhaps the biggest tail risk event in a long time. The NBFC-MFIs, being specialised institutions extending collateral free loans to low-income groups, are particularly exposed to credit risks in this scenario. Further, repayment rates have dropped significantly, posing liquidity risks. Smaller NBFCs-MFIs are particularly vulnerable to credit rating downgrades, which may hamper their ability to raise fresh capital and access liquidity," the RBI paper warned.

It added, however, that though the pandemic presents new challenges and significant financial risks for the sector, it also presents an opportunity to build long-term resilience.

Liquidity package for discoms set to be increased to ₹1.2 lakh cr from this month

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Centre is set to increase the amount set aside for debt-ridden power distribution companies (discoms) as part of its earlier liquidity relief package for the utility firms.

The government's package had allowed discoms to borow ₹90,000 crore from state-run power sector financiers PFC Ltd., and REC Ltd.. This was to help the companies pay around ₹94,000 crore in dues to power generating companies as of early this year.

However, according to a senior power ministry official, this amount is set to be raised to ₹1.2 lakh crore. Speaking at a webinar on 'Innovation in Renewable Energy' organised by PHDCCI, Power Secretary S N Sahai said that the liquidity package would cover discoms' outstanding dues from April to June this year too, in addition to the rest of the year. The full package would be raised to ₹1.2 lakh crore from ₹90,000 crore in order to reflect the accumulated dues over the pandemic-hit summer, according to sources.

Agency reports also say that an official communication in this regard has already been sent to the two financing companies by the power ministry.

According to government statements, around ₹68,000 crore has been sanctioned from the initial ₹90,000 liquidity package, of which around ₹25,000 crore has already been disbursed to discoms.

Last month, the Union Cabinet had relaxed working capital limit norms for discoms under the UDAY scheme, allowing many stressed company to avial of the credit offered as part of the liquidity scheme. Under UDAY, banks and financial institutions are restricted to lend working capital up to 25 per cent of a discom's revenue in the previous year. This threshold has now been relaxed to provide relief.

GRAND ENCOUNTER

At Flushing Meadows on Sunday evening, two of tennis' next generation talents in men's tennis will meet in the US Open final for a chance at winning a maiden Slam. Here's a look at the matchup between Dominic Thiem and Alexander Zverev...

LIVE ON STAR SPORTS SELECT 1/ SELECT 2 @ 1:30 AM

ALEXANDER ZVEREV

DOMINIC THIEM

2018 THE LAST TIME ZVEREV BEAT THIEM

Zverev		Thiem
23	Age	26
Germany	Nationality	Austrian
7	Rank	3
2	Head to head	7
11	Titles won	16

ZVEREV'S GRIT

There was a time when the German suffered from big stage fear. Infact, before this year, his best was a pair of quarterfinals at the French Open in 2018 and 2019. In 2020, he has followed a semifinal in Australia with at least a final here. What's changed? Apart from improving his overall game, he has also worked in the mental aspect. Consider this: in three of the last four matches, he lost the first set but never panicked. However, that strategy of starting slowly could come back to bite him. That big-booming serve of his is one of the best on tour but it's hit and miss. In the last two matches alone, he has served 20 double faults (42 aces). If it malfunctions, the Austrian will fancy his chances.

THIEM STARTS FAVOURITE

Apart from the Big Three, Thiem has been one of the most consistent performers at Majors. That he has now reached four Slam finals since the 2018 French Open is indicative of that. In New York over the last two weeks, he has only grown in stature. Having lost only one set in six matches, including an impressive straight sets win over Russian Daniil Medvedev in the semifinal, he is also relatively fresher of the two players. The way he has further worked on his main weapon — the one-handed backhand from the baseline — is the key for him to win. That's even before you take into account his reliable service. He may not get too many aces but it does enough damage.

0 These two have faced each other thrice before in Slams, with the Austrian winning all 3

2 If he wins, Thiem will become only the second Austrian to win a single title (Thomas Muster)

SEMIS
Zverev (GER x5) bt P Carreno-Busta (ESP x20) 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3;

I'm through to my first Grand Slam final and that's all that matters. I couldn't be happier, but there's still one more step to go for me. For me, I think it's going to be extremely difficult. The two best players in the world are going to be playing on court.

Alexander Zverev

I love these big matches. Even more when there's a full stadium, but it's also great in front of many, many TV spectators. To face the best guys in the world, that's what I do the hard work for all the time.

Dominic Thiem

SEMIS
Thiem (AUT x2) bt Medvedev (RUS x3) 6-2, 7-6 (9/7) 7-6 (7/5).

Curtailed season may disrupt players' income

With cricketers facing possible pay cuts, those without jobs could be worst-hit

ATREYO MUKHOPADHYAY @ Chennai

BEYOND IPL, the reality is different. Uncertainty over the 2020-21 domestic calendar spells trouble for those toiling away from the spotlight. No play means no pay for a majority in the senior men's circuit. The BCCI is monitoring the situation and at best, a truncated season looks on the cards. Even though some states are thinking of starting camps, decision on tournaments is unlikely in the next two months.

This is bad news for those who earn a significant part of their livelihood from playing. On average, one who plays all matches in all formats makes around ₹13-14 lakh per season from match fees and players' share of the BCCI's profits. For players from teams reaching semis and finals, this figure is close to ₹20 lakh. A curtailed calendar and the BCCI's profits from TV rights set to dip due to cancellation of ties in India against South Africa and England, domestic players may be in for a slash in income.

"Players who don't have jobs are dependent on earnings from BCCI tournaments and club cricket. Fewer matches will make things difficult for them. But we also have to remember that the situation is uncontrollable. We have heard efforts are being made to stage two tournaments. It will be a relief if that happens," said Abhimanyu Easwaran, Bengal captain and India A opener Abhimanyu Easwaran.

> Players who don't have jobs are dependent on earnings from BCCI tournaments and club cricket. Fewer matches will make things difficult for them
> Abhimanyu Easwaran, Bengal captain

Spread over 38 teams, around 600 players played in domestic competitions last season. Of course, not all of them played all matches. Keeping aside 122 Indian players in the IPL — who earn a minimum of ₹20 lakh from their franchises — over 450 players face the prospect of pay cuts. Some of them have jobs, but most of them depend on domestic cricket for sustenance.

Saurashtra Cricket Association chief Jaydev Shah, who led the team in Ranji Trophy for a record number of matches, feels it won't be possible for BCCI to offer compensation for missing out on match fees. "We are hit by a calamity which is beyond anyone's control. Also, there are practical problems in compensating players. How can we choose only the senior men's teams? There are other teams also. How do you compensate everyone? Maybe in case of emergencies, some provision can be made."

The BCCI is unlikely to take a call until the IPL is over on November 19. Decisions on scrapping tournaments and discussing the aspect of players suffering due to this can only be taken at a general body meeting. This has been postponed. So to know what is in store in terms of pay and play, players have to wait at least two months, if the meeting takes place soon after IPL.

BASKETBALL

BFI to provide financial assistance to 47 players

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

BASKETBALL Federation of India has shortlisted 47 players, who are in need of financial assistance due to the Covid-19 situation. Players who have represented India will get ₹50,000 while those who were part of the national camp, but failed to make it to the squad will receive ₹25,000. However, players with government jobs are not considered for this aid.

BFI president K Govindaraj played a key role in this initiative, forming a committee comprising nine members, with secretary-general Chander Mukhi Sharma as chairman. The committee remained busy over the last ten days or so, in virtual meetings, helping them identify players with recommendations from state secretaries.

The selection of the 47 players, who were found eligible for this aid, were carefully chosen, looking into various parameters, including education and medical expenses among others.

"We left out players, who are in government jobs and also those in the NBA Academy as well. Rest of the players were taken into consideration. We looked at criteria, like there are many who have to pay hostel and tuition fees, some may also need to buy their kits, including good shoes. By this initiative, we are trying to help our players, who are facing hardship due to the Covid situation," said Sharma.

UAE oasis in India-Australia series?

VENKATA KRISHNA B @ Chennai

WHERE will Team India head after IPL? The straight answer should be Australia, for a full-fledged tour beginning in December. But as of now, it is unclear. Cricket Australia (CA) is yet to confirm venues for the three T20Is, as many ODIs and four Tests. There is a possibility of the series happening in the UAE also, although this is still at an early stage.

Sources in BCCI indicate that CA has sent a tentative schedule with Adelaide, Brisbane and Sydney as the venues. On Saturday, CA said that the Australian team returning from the UK after the third ODI on September 16 will be allowed to complete their quarantine period at the onsite hotel in Adelaide Oval. But there is no confirmation whether Brisbane and Sydney will host matches, as CA also has to find a suitable venue for the Big Bash League that runs parallel with the India series.

CA was supposed to finalise the schedule this week, but following Western Australia's stance to not relax quarantine rules means Perth, which was spoken about as one of the venues, is ruled out. CA was looking at Brisbane for the limited-over ties, with Adelaide hosting the first two Tests including the day/night fixture and the Boxing Day match if the Covid-19 situation doesn't improve in Melbourne. Sydney was talked about as the venue to host the remaining two Tests.

Under the circumstances, the UAE may appear to be a logical choice. An official in the know confirmed that discussions are on, but declined to elaborate. If the series moves to UAE, it would come at a cost for CA. While they can use the bio-secure bubble already in place, operational costs have to be borne by them. Timings will be more suited to the Indian audience than Australian.

So far, CA has not got confirmation from News South Wales with regards to Sydney Cricket Ground. As for Brisbane, Queensland is going for elections on October 31. Reports from Down Under suggest CA has to wait until November 1 for confirmation on Brisbane. CA has already decided to host the Women's BBL in Sydney and whether they would do the same for BBL, which begins on December 3, also remains to be seen.

CA is caught in a tussle with host broadcaster Channel Seven, which is threatening to pull out of the deal citing lack of clarity. Any threat to India's tour, which usually fetches big money, will be the last thing the broadcaster would want. While there are talks between the boards to finalise the schedule, BCCI officials revealed it would take at least a week.

The new mechanism was described in a study published in the The Journal of Clinical Investigation.

Revamped OxyContin did not reduce abuse: Panel

Purdue Pharma claims its updated tablets are difficult to crush and dissolve, making them harder to snort or inject

OPIOID CRISIS

WASHINGTON: A panel of government health advisers on Friday said there's no clear evidence that a harder-to-crush version of the painkiller OxyContin designed to discourage abuse actually resulted in fewer overdoses or deaths.

The conclusion from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) advisory panel comes more than a decade after Purdue Pharma revamped its blockbuster opioid, which has long been blamed for sparking a surge in painkiller abuse beginning in the 1990s.

In a series of non-binding votes, the FDA experts said that the updated OxyContin appeared to cut down abuse via snorting and injecting, compared to the original drug. But panellists overwhelmingly ruled that data from Purdue and other researchers did not show that the reformulation curbed abuse overall or led to fewer overdoses.

Panellists said the shortcomings were due, in part, to the challenges of studying overdoses, which often involve multiple drugs.

"I think it's very difficult to tease out cause of death and overdose," said Dr. Lewis Nelson of Rutgers University. "Overall, I think the quality of evidence was fairly poor."

The long-acting OxyContin tablets can still be misused by simply swallowing them, which remains the most frequent route among those with opioid addiction.

The FDA will consider the group's opinions as it weighs whether to revisit OxyContin's terms of approval. That could include scaling back the drug's prescribing labelling, which currently states that it is "expected to" reduce abuse via injecting and snorting.

> I think it's very difficult to tease out cause of death and overdose... Overall, I think the quality of evidence was fairly poor
>
> Dr Lewis Nelson, Rutgers University

Purdue's 2010 revamped OxyContin was the first of several opioids developed by drugmakers to help curb abuse. But whether the drugs met that goal remains unclear and the FDA is reviewing their use.

These so-called abuse-deterrent formulations account for just 2 per cent of US opioid prescriptions. The vast majority of opioids prescribed are generic versions of short-acting opioids like hydrocodone.

Purdue representatives said during the meeting that multiple studies showed the updated tablets are harder to crush and dissolve, making them harder to snort or inject. They said those changes represent a "meaningful incremental improvement," over the original OxyContin launched in 1996.

Data submitted by Purdue showed both prescribing and illegal trafficking of OxyContin decreased after the company pulled and replaced the original version of the drug.

But panelists said it was impossible to decipher whether those positive trends were due to the reformulation or a host of other factors affecting opioid use, including government crackdowns on pill mills and an influx of illegal opioids like heroin and fentanyl.

Several studies suggest many people who abused OxyContin switched to generic pain pills or illicit opioids, but patterns of switching varied widely across the country and populations, further blurring the drug's overall impact.

Purdue said in a statement following the meeting it would continue to work with the FDA as it reviewed the OxyContin studies. The company declared bankruptcy last year in an effort to settle thousands of lawsuits accusing it of over-promoting OxyContin and misleading the public about its risks.

US drug overdose deaths hit a new high last year of 71,000, according to federal data, driven mainly by fentanyl and similar synthetic opioids which were involved in about half of all deaths. Deaths tied to prescription opioid overdoses have plateaued at around 15,000 annually. The slowdown follows years of prescribing restrictions and warnings aimed at physicians.

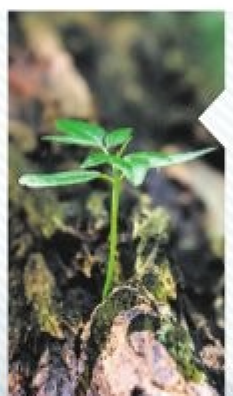
Quantifying phosphorus loss due to soil erosion

Phosphorus is essential for agriculture, yet this important plant nutrient is increasingly disappearing from soils around the world. In a detailed study, published in the journal Nature Communications, researchers blamed soil erosion. We take a look

CRUCIAL NUTRIENT

The world's food production depends directly on phosphorus. However, this plant nutrient is not unlimited, but comes from finite geological reserves



HIGH RESOLUTION DATA

Researchers investigated which continents and regions worldwide are suffering the greatest loss of phosphorus

They combined high-resolution spatially discrete global data on the phosphorus content of soils with local erosion rates

Based on this, they calculated how much phosphorus is lost through erosion in different countries

50% of global phosphorus loss in agriculture is attributable to soil erosion

> That erosion plays a role was already known. The extent of that role has never before been quantified with this level of spatial resolution
>
> Christine Alewell

PREVIOUS FINDS

Previously, experts reported losses primarily due to lack of recycling, food and feed waste and general mismanagement of phosphorus resources

NUTRIENTS NOT IN FIELDS, BUT WATER

Erosion flushes mineral bound phosphorus out of agricultural soils into wetlands and water bodies

Here, the excess of nutrients (eutrophication) harms the aquatic plant and animal communities

Researchers were able to validate their calculations using globally published measurement data on phosphorus content in rivers: the elevated phosphorus content in waters mirrors the calculated loss of phosphorus in the soil in the respective region

AFRICA AND SOUTH AMERICA AFFECTED MOST

Africa, Eastern Europe and South America register the greatest phosphorus losses

Africa possesses the largest geological phosphorus deposits. But the mined phosphorus is exported and costs many times more for most farmers in Africa than in Europe

In Eastern Europe, economic constraints are also the most crucial factor of phosphorous deficiency

MEASURES

Mineral fertilisers can replace the lost phosphorus in the fields, but not all countries are equally able to use them

PHOSPHATE DEPOSITS

New large deposits were discovered a few years ago in Western Sahara and Morocco. Europe has practically no phosphorus deposits of its own

HOW TO TACKLE SOIL EROSION

A drastic reduction in soil erosion is a major and important step in the right direction

Land managers can reduce erosion by ensuring:

1. MULCHING
2. GREEN MANURE AND INTERCROPPING
3. TOPOGRAPHY-ADAPTED CULTIVATION

China says Mars probe stable, but keeps mum on reusable spacecraft

MISSION RED PLANET

BEIJING: China's Mars probe Tianwen-1, which blasted into space in July, is now more than 15 million kilometres from Earth en route to the Red Planet, the National Space Administration said on Saturday.

The administration said that Tianwen-1 was in stable condition, having completed its first mid-course orbital correction early last month. It will be about 195 million kilometres from Earth when it arrives at Mars around February, having travelled 470 million kilometres in all to get there.

The administration, however, has yet to release information about a mysterious reusable experimental spacecraft that returned to Earth a week ago after a two-day flight.

The spacecraft consists of an orbiter, a lander and a rover, and marks China's most ambitious Mars mission yet as it seeks to join the US in successfully landing a spacecraft on the planet. It was blasted into space aboard a Long March-5 on July 23 during a month when the United Arab Emirates and the US also took advantage of a shortened distance between the planets to launch similar missions.

China said the reusable spacecraft returned to its designated landing site last Sunday, calling the flight a breakthrough that will eventually provide convenient round-trip transport to space at a low cost. No other details on the mission or the configuration of the spacecraft have been released.

That is also seen as an attempt to put China on the leading edge of space flight.

China's military-backed space programme has developed rapidly since it became just the third country after Russia and the US to put a man in space in 2003. Last year, China's Chang'e-4 became the first spacecraft from any country to land on the far side of the Moon.

FACT OF THE MATTER

Calls create stronger bonds

STAY CONNECTED

WhatsApp users, read on. People too often prefer to send email or text messages in order to save time, but a phone call, even a brief one, is more likely to produce the feeling of connectedness, say researchers. The team found that when they really interacted, people felt significantly more connected when they communicated by talking than by typing. In the study, published in the Journal of Experimental Psychology, people chose to type because they believed a phone call would be more awkward — but they were wrong. They found it wasn't more awkward to hear each other's voices. The researchers also found calls took about the same amount of time as reading and responding to email.

Aerobics for a sharper mind

2 MINS DAILY

Researchers in Sweden have found that even two minutes of aerobic exercise can have a positive effect on brain function in young adults. According to a recent review, published in Translational Sports Medicine, just opting for a single exercise workout has positive effects on learning and memory in young adults. Previous studies have shown that physical exercise improves mental health and cognitive function. "Exercise makes you smart. The purpose of this systematic review was to evaluate the current literature examining the acute effects of a single exercise workout on learning and memory functions in young adults," said study author Peter Blomstrand from the Jonkoping University.

Anti-bacterial graphene masks developed

80% EFFICIENT

HONG KONG: To fight against the Covid-19 pandemic, scientists have successfully produced graphene masks with an anti-bacterial efficiency of 80 per cent, which can be enhanced to almost 100 per cent with exposure to sunlight for around 10 minutes.

According to the study, published in ACS Nano, initial tests also showed promising results in the deactivation of two species of coronaviruses.

"The graphene masks are easily produced at low cost and can help to resolve the problems of sourcing raw materials and disposing of non-biodegradable masks," said study authors from the City University of Hong Kong.

The study showed that the anti-bacterial efficiency of graphene material could be improved to 99.998 per cent within 10 minutes under sunlight, while activated carbon fibre and melt-blown fabrics only showed an efficiency of 67 per cent and 85 per cent respectively.

Researchers revealed that commonly used surgical masks are not anti-bacterial. This may lead to the risk of secondary transmission of bacterial infection when people touch the contaminated surfaces of the used masks.

Poor home hygiene contributing to antibiotic resistance: Study

MOP OFF

NEW YORK: Amid the Covid-19 pandemic, researchers have found that poor home hygiene is contributing to antibiotic resistance and following a risk-based approach is essential to help curb the growing threat of antibiotic resistance.

Antibiotic resistance occurs when bacteria change in some way that reduces or eliminates the effectiveness of drugs, chemicals, or other agents designed to cure or prevent infections. The bacteria survive and continue to multiply causing more harm.

According to the Global Hygiene Council's (GHC) public health experts, it is estimated that rates of resistance to commonly-used antibiotics could exceed 40-60 per cent in some countries by 2030.

The GHC's experts are calling for a review of hygiene practices in homes and everyday life to ensure that they are effective and appropriate to the urgent public health issues we currently face, such as antimicrobial resistance (AMR) and Covid-19. In the study, published in the American Journal of Infection Control, the GHC experts set out the evidence showing that better hygiene in our homes and everyday lives plays an essential part in tackling antibiotic resistance.

Good hygiene contributes to the fight against AMR in two ways, by preventing infection, thereby reducing the need for antibiotic prescribing and preventing person to person spread of infections which are antibiotic-resistant.

The paper reviews evidence that to minimise the spread of infections in home and community settings, a more focused approach to hygiene based on risk assessment is needed.

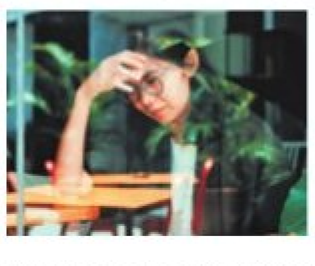
One intervention study demonstrates that improved hand hygiene amongst a group of children in a day centre can reduce the need for antibiotic use for common respiratory infections by 30 per cent.

"Focusing on the times and places harmful microbes are most likely to spread, to not only help contain the spread of coronavirus now but ongoing to help tackle AMR," said study author Sally Bloomfield from GHC.

Heart rate can spot depression

EARLY SIGNAL

For the first time, researchers and clinicians have revealed that measuring changes in the heart rate for 24 hours can reliably indicate whether or not someone is depressed. In practical terms, this may give clinicians an objective "early warning" of potential depression, as well as a rapid indication whether or not treatment is working, so opening the way to more rapid and responsive treatment. "Our pilot study suggests that by just measuring your heart rate for 24 hours, we can tell with 90 per cent accuracy if a person is currently depressed or not," said the study's lead author Carmen Schiweck from the Goethe University in Germany. Heart rates were measured using a wearable mini-ECG. The data was fed to an Artificial Intelligence programme, which was able to classify nearly all controls and patients correctly as being depressed or healthy.



916,372

The pandemic has killed at least 916,372 people worldwide since surfacing in China late last year, as per an AFP count on Saturday based on official sources.

Ceasefire plea goes unheeded

Abdullah Abdullah, who was previously Afghanistan's chief executive and is heading the peace process for Kabul, called for an immediate ceasefire -- but his plea went unanswered by Taliban co-founder Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar, who made no mention of a truce in his opening remarks. The Taliban have long worried that reducing violence could lessen their leverage.

HISTORIC AFGHAN PEACE TALKS KICK OFF IN QATAR

Mistrust on both sides, but this may be the best shot at ending war

DOHA

AFGHANISTAN'S warring sides started negotiations for the first time, bringing together the Taliban and delegates appointed by the Afghan government Saturday for historic meetings aimed at ending decades of war.

US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo attended the opening ceremony in Qatar, where the meetings are taking place and where the Taliban maintain a political office. The start of negotiations was the latest in a flurry of diplomatic activity by the Trump administration ahead of the US presidential election in November.

"Each of you carry a great responsibility," Pompeo told the participants. "You have an opportunity to overcome your divisions."

While Saturday's opening was about ceremony, the hard negotiations will be held behind closed doors and over a number of sessions. But following a meeting with the Taliban on Saturday in Doha, Washington's peace envoy Zalmay Khalilzad said the US and every Afghan would like to see a deal "sooner rather than later."

The sides will be tackling tough issues in the negotiations, which will include the terms of a permanent ceasefire, the rights of women and minorities, and the disarming of tens of thousands of Taliban fighters and militias loyal to warlords, some of them aligned with the government.

Khalilzad said a quick, permanent cease-fire is unlikely, but held out hope for a gradual reduction in violence till both sides are ready to end their fighting. Mistrust runs deep on both sides, he said.

The Afghan negotiation teams are also expected to discuss constitutional changes and power sharing during their talks. Subsequent rounds of negotiations could be held outside Doha. Germany is among nations offering to host future negotiations.

Even seemingly mundane issues like the flag and the name of the country — the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan or the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan, as the Taliban's administration was known when it ruled — could find their way onto the negotiation table and roil tempers.

Among the government-appointed negotiators are four women, who have vowed to preserve women's rights in any power-sharing deal with the Taliban. This includes the right to work, education and participation in political life, all denied to women when the Taliban ruled Afghanistan for five years.

No women are on the Taliban's negotiation team, led by their chief justice Abdul Hakim. The insurgent movement has said it accepted a woman's right to work, go to school and be in politics but would not accept a woman as president or chief justice. AP

AstraZeneca's vaccine trial resumes after safety review

LONDON

OXFORD University announced Saturday it was resuming a trial for a coronavirus vaccine it is developing with pharmaceutical company AstraZeneca, a move that comes days after the study was suspended following a reported side-effect in a UK patient.

In a statement, the university confirmed the restart across all of its UK clinical trial sites after regulators gave the go-ahead following the pause on Sunday. "The independent review process has concluded and following the recommendations of both the independent safety review committee and the UK regulator, the MHRA, the trials will recommence in the UK," it said.

The vaccine being developed by Oxford and AstraZeneca is widely perceived to be one of the strongest contenders among the dozens of coronavirus vaccines in various stages of testing around the world.

British Health Secretary Matt Hancock welcomed the restart, saying in a tweet that it was "good news for everyone" that the trial is "back up and running."

The university said globally some 18,000 people have received its vaccine so far in Britain, Brazil and South Africa. Around 30,000 volunteers are being recruited in the US.

Although Oxford would not disclose information about the patient's illness due to participant confidentiality, an AstraZeneca spokesman said earlier this week that a woman had developed severe neurological symptoms that prompted the pause. Specifically, the woman is said to have developed symptoms consistent with transverse myelitis, a rare inflammation of the spinal cord.

Pauses in drug trials are commonplace and the temporary hold led to a sharp fall in AstraZeneca's share price. AP

Anti-Shiite protesters march for a second day

Tens of thousands of anti-Shiite protesters including demonstrators linked to Sunni extremists rallied in Pakistan's Karachi on Saturday, in the second day of protests that have sparked fears of sectarian violence. Vast crowds of men thronged downtown Karachi, many of them waving pro-Sunni flags and chanting Sunni-power slogans. The rallies follow a raft of blasphemy accusations against Shiite leaders in Sunni-majority Pakistan after a broadcast of an Ashura procession last month showed clerics and participants allegedly making disparaging remarks about historic Islamic figures. Ashura commemorates the killing of the Prophet Mohammed's grandson Hussein in 680 AD.

Country reports 42 new cases, mainly in worker dormitories

Singapore on Saturday reported 42 new coronavirus cases, mostly among foreign workers, taking the country's infection count to 57,357. "Based on our investigations, there are four cases in the community, of whom one is a Singapore permanent resident and three are work pass holders," the Ministry of Health (MOH) said in a statement. 'There are 10 imported cases, who have been placed on Stay-Home Notice upon arrival in Singapore.' The rest were foreign workers living in dormitories.

Tanker authorities likely neglected fire warnings from crew, court told

The authorities of the oil tanker that went up in flames off Sri Lanka's eastern waters seemed to have neglected warnings from the crew on possible fire on board, a Sri Lankan court has heard. The MT New Diamond, a Greek-owned vessel, was carrying nearly two million barrels of crude oil from Mina Al Ahmadi port in Kuwait to the Indian port of Paradip when it caught fire off the coast of Sangamankanda on Thursday last. A Filipino crew member died and another was injured. According to the Lankan Navy, a narrow diesel patch, 1 km from the ship, was noticed on Monday evening and an Indian Coast Guard aircraft sprayed dispersants to minimise potential damage to the environment.

State warns of mass deaths as deadly US wildfires rage

SALEM

DIMINISHING winds and rising humidity helped firefighters battling deadly blazes in Oregon and California, but with dozens of people still missing, authorities in both states feared that the receding flames could reveal many more dead across the blackened landscape.

Oregon's emergency management director said officials were preparing for a possible "mass fatality event."

In California, smoke that painted skies orange also helped crews corral the state's deadliest fire of the year. The smoke helped blocked the sun, reducing temperatures and raising humidity, officials said.

Nine people, including a 16-year-old boy, have been confirmed dead in California since lightning-caused fires that started weeks ago fused into a monster blaze that largely destroyed Berry Creek, a tiny hamlet in the Sierra Nevada foothills northeast of San Francisco.

Oregon authorities have not released an exact death count, but at least eight fatalities were reported from the blazes that have taken a toll from one end of the state to the other. Gov. Kate Brown said Friday that tens of thousands of people had been forced to flee their homes.

Two large blazes threatened to merge near the most populated part of Oregon, including Portland's suburbs.

More than 40,000 Oregonians have been evacuated and about 500,000 are in different levels of evacuation zones, having been told to leave or to prepare to do so, Brown said. The governor dialed back a statement late Thursday by the state Office of Emergency Management that said a half-million people had been ordered to evacuate statewide.

Scores of people were missing in Jackson County in the southern area of the state and in Marion County east of Salem, the state capital, Brown told a news conference. Authorities also announced that a man had been arrested on two counts of arson in connection with a fire in southern Oregon.

Searchers found two victims of the so-called Beachie Creek fire near Salem.

Improved weather helped efforts on the ground after days of high winds, heat and low humidity. "The wind laid down quite a bit for us yesterday," said Stefan Myers of the state's fire information team.

Almost 500 firefighters were working on the fires near Portland, which were just a few kms apart. The rugged terrain between them limited efforts to contain the flames, Myers said. AP

E.U. COULD CARVE UP BRITAIN: JOHNSON

LONDON

BRITISH Prime Minister Boris Johnson has strongly defended his government's plan to override sections of the Brexit deal he negotiated with the European Union, arguing that the EU has an "extreme" interpretation of the treaty that could jeopardize the UK's future.

In a column published Saturday in The Daily Telegraph, Johnson said the government's Internal Market Bill is needed to end EU threats to impose a "blockade" in the Irish Sea that the prime minister asserted could "carve up our country."

The legislation, which the British government has conceded violates international law in places, has prompted a furious outcry within the EU and Johnson's Conservative Party. British lawmakers are expected to debate it next week.

With the government showing no sign of changing course, there are real concerns that ongoing talks on a future trade deal between the UK and the EU could collapse within weeks. If that happens, tariffs and other impediments to trade will be imposed by both sides at the start of 2021.

Michael Gove, a senior member of Johnson's Cabinet, told Sky News on Saturday that the government needs to take out an "insurance policy."

The UK left the EU on Jan. 31, but it is in a transition period that effectively sees it benefit from the bloc's tariff-free trade until 2020-end while a future relationship is negotiated. But talks between EU's chief negotiator and his UK counterpart had made very little progress.

Johnson wrote he was "now hearing" that unless his government agrees to the EU's terms in the trade discussions, then the bloc will use "an extreme interpretation of the Northern Ireland protocol to impose a full-scale trade border down the Irish Sea." AP

HOW BRITAIN'S NEW BILL UNDERMINES THE NEGOTIATED BREXIT DEAL

The furor is largely based on the fact that the bill would diminish the EU's previously agreed oversight of trade between mainland Britain and Northern Ireland in the event a trade agreement isn't secured

1. British ministers can overrule any requirement for declaration for goods being moved from Northern Ireland to Britain
2. Ministers can decide if goods being moved from Britian to Northern Ireland are at risk of going to the Irish Republic, which would call for checks at the border
3. The UK government can decide whether to tell the EU about state aid regarding companies based in Northern Ireland

N. IRELAND PROTOCOL

One major element of the Brexit withdrawal agreement, which allowed for the UK's smooth departure from the EU, is the section related to ensuring an open border on the island of Ireland to protect the peace process in Northern Ireland

Iran executes wrestler Navid Afkari despite global outcry, Trump's plea to spare his life

TEHRAN

IRANIAN state TV on Saturday reported that the country's authorities executed a wrestler for allegedly murdering a man, after President Donald Trump asked for the 27-year-old condemned man's life to be spared.

State TV quoted the chief justice of Fars province, Kazem Mousavi, as saying: "The retaliation sentence against Navid Afkari, the killer of Hassan Torkaman, was carried out this morning in Adelabad prison in Shiraz."

Afkari's case had drawn the attention of a social media campaign that portrayed him and his brothers as victims targeted over participating in protests against Iran's Shiite theocracy in 2018. Authorities accused Afkari of stabbing a water supply company employee in the southern city of Shiraz amid the unrest.

Iran broadcast the wrestler's televised confession last week. The segment resembled hundreds of other suspected coerced confessions aired over the last decade in Iran.

The International Olympic Committee in a statement said it was shocked and saddened by the news of the wrestler's execution, and that the committee's president, Thomas Bach, "had made direct personal appeals to the Supreme Leader and to the President of Iran this week and asked for mercy for Navid Afkari."

Last week, Trump tweeted out his own concern about Afkari's case. "To the leaders of Iran, I would greatly appreciate if you would spare this young man's life, and not execute him. Thank you!"

Iran responded to Trump's tweet with a nearly 11-minute state TV package on Afkari.

1,000s left homeless by Greek refugee protest

MORIA

THOUSANDS of asylum-seekers have spent a fourth night sleeping in the open on the Greek island of Lesbos, after successive fires destroyed a notoriously overcrowded migrant and refugee camp during a coronavirus pandemic lockdown.

Officials have said the Tuesday and Wednesday night blazes were deliberately set by some camp residents angered at quarantine and isolation orders imposed after 35 people in the Moria camp tested positive for Covid-19.

With the camp gutted, Saturday morning found men, women and children sleeping under improvised shelters made of reed stalks, blankets and salvaged tents.

Thousands assembled for a protest demanding to be allowed to leave the island. The gathering on a road blocked by police buses also drew supporters with Black Lives Matter signs.

The demonstration was loud but peaceful, with mainly children and women at the front. Riot police observed nearby as protesters chanted slogans and held up improvised banners made of pieces of cardboard or sheets.

"We need peace & freedom. Moria kills all lives," read one.

A few of the demonstrators wore masks in the tightly packed crowd of people who recently had lived in the camp, which had dozens of confirmed coronavirus cases before it burned down.

Leaving the island would require a bending of European Union rules, under which asylum-seekers reaching Greece's islands from Turkey must stay there until they are either granted refugee status or deported back to Turkey.

The Moria camp was built to house around 2,750 people but was so overcrowded that this week's fires left over 12,000 in need of emergency shelter on Lesbos. The camp had long been held up by critics as a symbol of Europe's failings in migration policy.

Moria was put under a virus lockdown until mid-September after the first case confirmed there was identified in a Somali man who had been granted asylum and left for Athens but later returned to the camp. AP
